ARKANSAS GOVERNOR UNDER GUARD

Teamsters Pledge Clean-up

Executive Board Denies Domination By Evil Influences

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Executive Board of the Teamsters Union denied AFL-CIO charges today that the Teamsters are dominated by corrupt influences. But it promised to start a clean-up drive at the annual convention starting in Miami Beach, Fla., on Sept. 30.

The Teamsters answer to the CIO-AFL charges was given in the three-page statement handed to newsmen just before Executive Board members went before the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committe for a hearing.

The closed, two-day hearing at AFL-CIO headquarters was almost an hour late getting started

Teamster President Dave Beck, his heir apparent, Vice President James R. Hoffa, and eight other top Teamster officials attended.

The AFL-CIO accusations were based largely on accusations by the Senate Rackets Committee that Beck used union funds for his own personal profit and that Hoffa gained power with the help of gangsters and racketeers.

Not as a Whole

The Teamsters high command said the union has more than 800 locals, 5,000 local officers and 1,500,000 members and "no group of individuals can so dominate its affairs" to justify charges of corrupt domination.

"Without attempting to summarize the allegations," "their three page statement said, "It appears that none of them are of such magnitude as to support a belief that the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, as an entity, is 'dominated, controlled or substantially influenced in the conduct of its affairs by a corrupt influence.'"

The statement said the Teamsters Executive Board has no intention of taking action against any official which would prejudice his rights under the U S. Constutution or federal law.

Beck is under indictment on charges of income tax evasion. Hoffa has been indicted on wiretapping charges. Vice President Frank W. Brewster has been convicted of contempt of Congress and Vice President Einor O. Mohn faces the same charge.

Bright Sun Is Blamed for Three-car Crash

A bright sun was blamed for a three-car accident at the intersection of Third St. and Schoonmaker Ave, Monessen, at 8:55 this morning.

Rhoda Madorma, of Miller St., Newell, told police she was traveling on Schoonmaker Ave. and failed to see a red light at the intersection because the sun was in her eyes. Her car collided with two cars traveling on a green light in opposite directions on Third St.

The other drivers involved were Vincent Cocchiana, of 14 Willow Dr., Monessen, and Mike Rubish, of Perryopolis, who was driving a car belonging to the Magura Clothing Co, Monessen. The cars were badly damaged. The Madorma and Cocchiana machines had to be towed away.

Miss Madorma, who suffered a cut lip, assumed responsibility, according to police Lt. Joseph Reday.

Democrats Here Build Big Lead At Registration

Monessen Democrats continued their mastery in local politics yesterday with 196 vote registrations to but eight for the Republicans.

A total of 33 changes of address were recorded during registrations here yesterday.

Other registration figures in the district showed 12 Democrats and one Republican in North Belle Vernon, 10 Democrats and one Republican in Smithton and 78 Democrats and 30 Republicans in West Newton.

Another registration day will be held in Monessen next Wednesday.

The court house office in Greensburg will accept registrations until 9 p.m. on Sept. 12, 13, 14 and 16. Sept. 16 is the last day to register to be eligible to vote in the Nov. 5 general election.

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Shamrock Oil and Gas Co. directors declared a three-for-two stock split Wednesday and boosted the quarterly cash dividend on present common 10 cents to 60 cents per share.

George D. Macbeth

George Macbeth Retires from Corning Post

George D. Macbeth, long associated with the glass industry in Charleroi, resigned yesterday as vice - president and controller of Corning Glass Works.

Macbeth was a leader in the industry for 44 years, joining the Macbeth-Evans Glass Co. in 1913. When that firm merged with the Corning Glass Works in 1936, he continued to serve as a director and officer of the consolidated company.

A native of Pittsburgh, Macbeth is the son of George A. Macbeth, who built the first glass plant in Charleroi around 1894.

Macbeth graduated from the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University in 1913 and immediately joined Macbeth-Evans. He was named assistant secretary and a director of the company in 1916 and subsequently served as secretary, vice-president and finally president.

After the merger with Corning, Macbeth was elected director and vice-president. He has also served as controller since 1943.

He is a director of the Pittsburgh Corning Corp., Corning Fibre Box Corp. and a past director of Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp.

He is a director and member of the executive committee of the Corning Hotel Corp. and a trustee of The Corning Museum of Glass and the Corning Glass Works Foundation.

Macbeth was elected chairman of the executive committee of the Corning Hospital board of directors in 1945. He was elected president of the hospital board in 1949 and during his presidency was in-

P&LE President Says Railroad to Cooperate In Local Master Plan

The Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad wants to be as cooperative as possible toward Monessen's master plan for community development, City officials were told by the president of the railroad at a meeting here yesterday.

Under suitable financial arrangements, P. & L. E. will even consider moving its freight station and rearranging other facilities to accommodate the plan, company representatives declared.

Occasion for the meeting in Monessen yesterday was a briefing of the railroad officials on the long range plans which the City is drawing for its future development P. & L. E. President John W. Barriger brought his principal aides and played host to City Council and the Planning Commission at a four-hour session beginning at noon in Johnson's.

After listening to a summary of the City's planning activities and viewing some of the material prepared over the past two years, Barriger indicated the railroad hopes to do what it can to help the plans materialize.

Most Happy

In most cases where industry and enterprise have sought new locations, said Barriger, it has been because older communities did not provide necessary space or did not make themselves attractive in modern standards. It is very stimulating, Barriger continued, to observe a community putting forth a strong effort to better itself, as the plans indicate Monessen is trying to do.

"The P. & L. E Railroad would be most happy as any railroad would," he said, "to have a part in a community plan such as this."

He indicated there would be financial obstacles to be overcome and these would have to be resolved to the satisfaction of the railroad's directors.

Eastern Approach

Receiving detailed consideration at the meeting was the eastern approach to the City, where it is hoped that a redevelopment might make possible a new freight station facility, a municipal sewage treatment plant, a new highway pattern and additional industrial area.

In answer to a question, H. H. McClean, general counsel for the railroad, said the company has "no sentimental attachment" for the present freight station site (Donner avenue from Second to Fourth street) and would consider a new location providing it would enable the railroad to perform its function in Monessen and could be arranged without financial hardship to the company.

Although all the planning involved is long range, technicians for the railroad and the City Plan-

Clues Presented To Jurors in Mon City Trial

WASHINGTON, Pa. (UP)—A 75-year-old woman, on trial for murder in the strangulation of a Monongahela, Pa., shoemaker, was linked to the crime today by four buttons, a bloodstained piece of linoleum and a door key.

Those were the first bits of evidence presented by the state in its efforts to prove that Mrs. Lena Trappin throttled her neighbor, Joseph Mancuso, 65, with a brown leather belt last May 1.

Monongahela City Patrolman Albert Zavarello, who testified through most of the Washington County Court trial session Wednesday, was scheduled to return to the stand again this morning. After describing how Mancuso's body was found in a yard near Mrs. Trappin's home, Zavarello said bloodstains found in her home matched the victim's blood type.

A button missing from Mancuso's underwear was picked up in her kitchen and three buttons similar to three missing from his shirt were found in a bedroom of the house, Zavarello testified.

The officer said a key to Mancuso's shoemaker shop next door was found on the stairs of the woman's home.

The slender shoemaker lived with his invalid wife not far from the Trappin home.

Testimony in the trial opened after selection of a jury was completed Wednesday morning before Judge George T. Cummins. Asst. Dist. Atty. P. V. Marino indicated in questioning of prospective jurors the state would seek a first degree conviction with a penalty of life imprisonment.

Toastmaster for Pallone Dinner

Henry Furio, Monessen High School principal, will be toastmaster at the testimonial dinner to be held for Dr. Joseph Pallone, superintendent of local public schools, by the Sons of Italy Lodge 1764, Monessen, on Sunday, Sept. 29, at Twin Coaches.

The dinner will also mark the 22nd anniversary of the Lodge.

Frank Bosco, general chairman, also announced that Mayor Hugo J. Parente has been named honorary chairman.

A turkey dinner will be served and a floor show presented featuring Tony Bennett, singer.

Tickets are now being sold.

Local Firm Gets Paving Contract

Westmoreland Paving Co., of Monessen and Greensburg, has been awarded a contract for $126,000 to pave eight miles of roads in Indiana Twp., Allegheny County.

A new type of emulsified asphalt will be used in the paving, the firm announced. The new material is a mixture of asphalt and water and requires no base. It eliminates having the usual slag base.

Three Fined On Gambling Charge By Judge Laird

Albert Yuhasz and Gust Patronas, both of Monessen, and Harold Zeidman, Charleroi, yesterday pleaded guilty to running a gambling place in Monessen last Jan. 11.

Westmoreland County Judge Richard D. Laird fined the three defendants $200 each and costs. It was learned that Laird severely reprimanded the three and had threatened them with jail if they were unable to pay the fines and costs immediately. They were able to raise the money from friends without leaving the courthouse, it was reported.

The three were among the 20 men arrested when a detail of state police broke up a gambling game at a spot then known as the Fifth Avenue Smoke Shop at 475 Schoonmaker Ave. The 17 others were arrested as visitors and posted $10 forfeits each All lost the forfeits when they failed to appear for hearings.

The raid by state police was conducted without the knowledge of Monessen police

Yuhasz, 35, of 1208 Morgan Ave., figured in the vote fraud scandal in Monessen in the 1952 election. A minority inspector in the Third Ward, he was later found guilty and given a two-year suspended sentence in 1953. He had served out the suspension prior to last January's raid.

Route 40 Bridge Plans Progress

Progress is being made toward the construction of a high-level bridge to carry Route 40 over the Monongahela River at Brownsville, it was reported today.

State Sen. W. J. Lane said he had been informed by engineers that test boring work for the bridge will be completed by the end of September.

Plans for the bridge are now being drawn, Lane said. They should be completed sometime in November.

Lane said highway officials would not estimate when bids will actually be received because of necessary processing requirements, including a hearing by the Public Utility Commission.

Fears Federal Arrest; Defies Court Order

By UNITED PRESS

Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus remained defiant of federal school integration orders today and kept his executive mansion ringed with armed troops while the government was deciding how far it will go to force compliance with the Supreme Court's school ruling.

It was the first major showdown between a state and the federal government over the school integration issue.

The White House insisted there was no plan afoot to arrest Faubus for his refusal to integrate a Little Rock school, but the Chief Executive was taking no chances following reports Wednesday that such a plan was being considered.

Two companies of National Guardsmen, armed with pistols and rifles, guarded the executive mansion. At Central High School which was to have integrated this week, another 250 guardsmen and state troopers were on duty.

There were more tense racial situations in Kentucky and North Carolina today.

Police Open Passage

At Sturgis, Ky., 18 Negroes returned to the high school, marching through a narrow aisle between white pupils. State police ordered them to permit the passage.

Maj. Gen. J. J. B. Williams, Kentucky adjutant general, predicted that the worst of the troubles at Sturgis were over.

At Charlotte, N.C., a group of white boys stood on the school steps, hurling insults at Gustavus Roberts; a Negro boy, who appeared for the second day of school.

The crowd was dispersed quietly by Principal Ed Saunders who said, "let that boy in."

One of the Negroes who enrolled at Charlotte Wednesday and was spat upon and jeered failed to return today, begging "a sore throat."

In Montgomery, Ala., still strictly segregated, the effigy of a Negro, a rope around the neck, was found on a school yard on Wednesday night.

At Arlington, Va., five Negroes were turned away today when they applied for admission to two all-white schools. An orderly crowd of about 300 white pupils watched the incident.

Big Crowd Forms

At Little Rock, an estimated 1,500 white persons were milling about in front of Central High School by 10:30 a.m. e.d.t. Troops again were deployed about the building, ready to turn back any would-be integrationists.

But school started at 11:05 a.m. without any sign of the eight Negroes who were turned back on Wednesday.

Lt. Col. Marion Johnson, commanding the 250 National Guardsmen and state police at Central High, escorted reporter Benjamin Fine of the New York Times away from a crowd of whites.

Johnson agreed to let Fine return to interviewing persons in front of the school if he talked to

Heavy Fighting Breaks Out in Cuba

HAVANA, Cuba (UP) —Heavy fighting broke out this morning in the south coast city of Cienfuegos, province of Las Villas. The Cuban naval garrison in Cienfuegos seized the town but it was not immediately clear whether the navy men were fighting for or against the government.

Burglars Haul Cash Register From Station

Burglars broke into Bart's service Station at the intersection of Third St. and Schoonmaker Ave, Monessen, sometime during the night and carted away a few electric cash register valued at $695, police reported.

The safe was later found damaged behind the Magura Clothing Co., across the street from the station. Some $20 in cash was taken from the register.

The burglars needlessly damaged the machine to get to the money because a key was inserted on the outside of the register.

The burglary was discovered at 8 o'clock this morning when the owner, Bart Ferrara, opened for business. Entry was gained by prying open a window on the Third St. side of the station.

The station was locked up for the night at 11 p.m. by an attendant, Joseph Mauro, of Rostraver Twp.

The burglars, police surmise, either hauled the safe across the street physically or by car.

Car-Bike Mishap Here; Crash in North Charleroi

Two accidents were reported in the district yesterday, one a car-bicycle mishap in Monessen and the other a one-car accident in North Charleroi.

Andrew Latta, of 928 Chestnut St., Monessen, told police he was going north on Ontario St. about 7:30 last night when a bicycle driven by James Lepori, 10, of 429 Ontario St., ran into the side of the car.

Latta said he took the boy to Charleroi-Monessen Hospital for an examination which revealed no injuries.

Mrs. Esther Betonte, 24, of Belle Vernon, escaped injury yesterday morning when her car crashed in North Charleroi.

According to reports, the driver told police she dozed at the wheel and the car went out of control, knocking down a traffic standard. Damage to the car was estimated at $600.

Loughran Named Sheriff's Solicitor

Attorney Joseph M. Loughran, Greensburg, unsuccessful candidate for the third judgeship nomination in Westmoreland County in the May primary, yesterday was appointed solicitor for the sheriff's office by Sheriff Howard Bud Thomas.

Loughran succeeds Richard E. McCormick who was appointed to an assistant district attorney's post after resigning from the sheriff's office.

Thomas was an ardent booster for Loughran in the Democratic primary.

The position pays $1,998.72 annually.

Modern Zoning Ordinance Will Play Big Role in 'Master Plan'

(Development of a master plan for Monessen, a two-year project, will be completed within the next few months. An important part of the plan is a new zoning ordinance which the City Planning Commission is preparing to submit to Council. Since zoning affects all land and building throughout the City, it is a matter of interest to all residents. The Daily Independent begins this evening a series of six articles describing the ordinance and some of the changes it would bring about in Monessen.)

Although Monessen was a real pioneer among Pennsylvania communities in the matter of zoning, its existing zoning ordinance has been made obsolete by changes in the size and character of the city and by modern standards of community planning.

Cities throughout the country have been revitalizing their zoning regulations as one means of overcoming blight and insuring future growth in an orderly and economic pattern. This is the principal reason modern zoning is being given an important part in the comprehensive plan being developed for Monessen.

Seven Objectives

In general these are the objectives of the new zoning ordinance

1. To preserve existing good residential neighborhoods by keeping away from them intruding business establishments.

2. To prevent growth of future slum areas by prohibiting home construction in areas unfit for residences.

3. To improve safety and convenience in residential sections by restriction of commercial traffic.

4. To prevent overcrowding in areas where facilities would not be adequate to handle family needs.

5. To conserve potential industrial and commercial land by preventing its use for other purposes.

6. To relieve city-wide parking space shortage by, requiring private parking in proportion to need.

7. To improve the overall aspect of the community by the gradual elimination of unsuitable land use.

It might seem, on first thought, that little can be accomplished through zoning in a community like Monessen which is largely built up and in which residential, commercial and industrial uses seem to be hopelessly intermingled. It is true that the benefit accrue slowly over a period of years only as the zoning becomes fully effective.

Growing Interest

Zoning, however, is a proven means of helping a city to achieve wholesome development. It helps to protect property values, it helps in making a better climate for business and industry, it helps in development of a realistic tax program, and, perhaps most important, it helps relieve the inconvenience and hardship of living and working amid the chaotic conditions that result from unplanned community facilities.

Thus the average citizen who expects to continue to live or work in Monessen has a growing interest in good zoning well administered.

Monessen's new zoning ordinance is based upon detailed studies of existing conditions and long range plans prepared during the last year by the City Planning

Red Jet Airliner In U. S.

McGUIRE AIR FORCE BASE, N.J. (UP)—The first Soviet airliner to fly to the United States landed here Wednesday night marking the first transatlantic crossing of a jet passenger plane that is in regular service.

Guided by three American airmen, the sleek TU104A—the only jet in passenger service—touched down at 10:45 p.m. e.d.t., 22 hours after taking off from Moscow on its historic flight. Aboard were 59 persons, including 18 Russian airmen and a score of Russian diplomats bound for a special session of the United Nations General Assembly.

The flight of the 70-ton, 500-mile an-hour airliner, while ostensibly a "good will mission," served to emphasize Russia's claimed leadership in the field of jet passenger aviation. By comparison, the United States, Britain and France, the only other nations making commercial jets, are not expected to start jet passenger service until early in 1959.

Britain's Jets Grounded

Britain inaugurated commercial jet flights in 1952 with DeHaviland Comets, but grounded the planes two years later as a result of a series of crashes.

A second TU104A is scheduled to arrive in the United States later this month. The Russians agreed to land at McGuire AFB after requests to use New York International Airport were turned down. The New York Port Authority prohibits jets from landing at any of metropolitan New York's four airports unless they have passed a noise test.

About 500 persons were on hand to greet the Soviet airliner. U.S. Public Health Service officials were the first to board the craft. Then all those aboard went through customs.

Alexi Semenkov, a representative of Aero Flot, the Soviet commercial airline, said the total flight was 13 hours and 29 minutes. He said the TU104A averaged 500 miles an hour during the 5,300-mile flight.

Engines Impressive

Famed American aircraft designer Maj. Alexander de Seversky, on hand "as an interested designer," said after inspecting the craft he was especially impressed by the plane's engines.

"The location of the engines is dynamically very sound," he said, "and they're almost twice as powerful as anything we have in this country."

The purpose of the American airmen was to assist the Soviet crew with U.S. aerial traffic procedures and to guide them through the intricate radar defense network spanning the northern tip of the continent.

The Americans were Capt. Harold G. Renegar, 33, of Keller, Tex.; Capt. Boris N. Dubson, 37, San Francisco; and M. Sgt. Gaylor E. Robinson, a radio operator, of Marietta, Ga.

them one at a time, by themselves.

Faubus Wednesday night wired President Eisenhower in Newport, R.I., that he feared federal agents planned to "arrest by force the head of a sovereign state." He also told Eisenhower he had reason to believe wires to the executive mansion had been tapped.

Mayor Crawford Mann of Little Rock, accused Faubus of perpetrating a "hoax" as a "political design of his own."

The Justice Department's formal intervention in the Arkansas case indicated the federal government meant to show it would not back down in its efforts to implement the Supreme Court's desegregation rulings.

Officials in the department denied, however, that U.S. marshals would escort Negro students through National Guard lines today.

The showdown with Faubus, when it comes, will be a legal one, Justice Department officials made it clear.

State Entry Having Fine Time at Pageant

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (UP) — Another day unfolded for Miss Pennsylvania but it was all fun, plus hard work for Jenny Rebecca Blatchford, of Hollidaysburg, the representative of the Keystone State in the Miss America pageant.

Miss Pennsylvania appeared Wednesday night in the swim suit competition which was won by Miss Arizona. But the Pennsylvania girl received a rousing accord from the audience in Convention Hall here.

The pretty, blonde girl with blue eyes received a fine round of applause at her introduction and again as she walked down the long runway and took her position before the judges. She wore a white swim suit.

There was no telling how many points she won in this first round. Only a first place winner is named. There is never an announcement of the winner in the evening gown division in which she will appear tonight.

On Friday night, Miss Blatchford will make her talent appearance in baton twirling and will be cheered on by a big delegation from the state who have already ordered a big block of tickets for the occasion. She had a special rehearsal with the pageant orchestra drummer for her act.

She spent a busy day Wednesday as the 51 contestants exchanged gifts representative of their state. Miss Blatchford presented each of the girls with a basketfull of mushrooms, significant of the state's leading role in the production of mushrooms.

The Hollidaysburg girl said she was enjoying herself immensely. She said one of the big items was being photographed by a television network (CBS) while having her hair done in the hotel beauty salon.

Miss Blatchford said she was delighted with the other girls in the pageant.

"I've met so many of them and they're such great fun," she said, "I get to see and know many of them and they are all so nice."

Butler Woman Held in $4,000 Bank Embezzling

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Mrs. Leona Jayne Angert, 27, Butler, Pa., was free on her own recognizance today following her arrest by the FBI on charges of embezzling more than $4,000 from the Mellon National Bank and Trust Co. branch at Butler.

Mrs. Angert, who worked as a clerk and secretary and had been employed by the bank since 1948, was arrested Wednesday and arraigned before U.S. Commissioner Alex McNaughter. Bond was set at $1,000 and she was given until Friday morning to post it.

She presented a personal check for $1,000 to cover the bond, but McNaughter refused it because it was made out to the clerk of Allegheny County courts and told her to return with one made out to the U.S. Government.

Robert D. O'Grady, chief Mellon Bank auditor, said Mrs. Angert admitted stealing the money over the past 10-month period. He said the loss might be $8,000 after a complete audit.

The parents of the suspect, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Rodgers, Butler offered to make full restitution, bank authorities said.

Mrs. Angert, who is married but has no children, received a salary of $4,575 yearly in addition to fringe benefits.

Economy Drive In Washington

Washington County Commissioners have ordered an economy drive to keep expenses within the 1957 budget.

Effective the first of this month, 38 county employes were dismissed from their jobs. However, most of them were working on a temporary basis through the summer months.

The Commissioners plan to send a letter to all office heads, informing them to cut back in operating expenses.

At the same time, the Commissioners are making plans to sell a $100,000 bond issue. The money will be used to remodel the county home.

Daughters of Famous Fathers Early Winners

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UP)—Two daughters of famous fathers won the first round honors Wednesday night in the Miss America pageant.

Blonde Sara Ann Cooper, Miss Missouri, who wasn't born when the Charleston was the rage in the 1920s, won the first preliminary talent competition. She danced the Charleston in a costume of that period.

Blonde Lynn Freyse, Miss Arizona, a 20-year-old girl with 36-23-35 measurements, won the first night swim suit competition in a brand new beige and white suit she purchased just for the pageant.

Miss Cooper is the daughter of Walker Cooper, catcher for the St. Louis Cardinals and one of baseball's greats. Miss Freyse is the daughter of cartoonist Bill Freyse who draws "Our Boarding House" with the blustering Major Hoople.

Almost as if rehearsed, each of the girls gasped, "I wonder if mother's here?" when the full realization came that they won the approval of the judges in the first round of opening night.

Miss Freyse, a junior at the University of Arizona and a picture of young womanhood, was the only one to decry the decision of the judges.

Bloom Calls Leader 'Greatest Political Flop'

BEDFORD, Pa., (UP)—Republican State Chairman George I. Bloom has called Gov. George M. Leader the "greatest political flop" in Pennsylvania history.

Bloom, speaking at a Bedford County Republican picnic Wednesday, charged "in spite of every propaganda trick the governor used, including thousands of dollars spent on TV, the people know him for what he is, the greatest political flop in the history of our state."

"Instead of the tax cuts and the savings of 100 million dollars he promised to get elected, Leader will be retired to private life next year by the voters with the unequalled record of spending a billion dollars more than was spent by any of his predecessors," Bloom said.

The charges were the latest delivered by the Republican leader during a tour across the state stirring up grass roots sentiment with an eye toward the county and municipal elections Nov. 5.

Commission and its professional counsel. The studies were necessary to determine the best use for each parcel of land within the City.

In most cases the land is already being used for purposes permitted in the zoning ordinance. Where changes would be called for, a period of years would be provided in which the change could be affected to minimize inconvenience for the property owner.

Before the ordinance becomes law in Monessen, the public must be given an opportunity to become familiar with the ordinance and ask questions about it. For this purpose the Planning Commission will sit in the Council chamber Tuesday evening, Sept. 17 and Wednesday evening, Sept. 25.

Although any citizen may attend either of the hearings, the Commission hopes interested residents of the First and Second Wards will avail themselves of the first date and Third and Fourth Ward residents the second date. Other Commission hearings will be scheduled if there is a need.

Council will hold its own hearings on the ordinance at later dates not yet announced.

Flu Vaccine to Distribute on Population Basis

WASHINGTON (UP)—The six manufacturers of Asian flu vaccine have agreed to distribute vaccine supplies to the states on a population basis.

The Public Health Service announced Wednesday night the manufacturers accepted the distribution plan proposed several weeks ago by Surgeon General Leroy E. Burney.

The service also endorsed a proposal by state health officers to have states and communities create advisory committees to draw up priority plans for inoculations.

Dr. W. Palmer Dearing, acting head of the Health Service, said the PHS allocation system is "the most equitable way of distributing the vaccine geographically."

Shipments will be made according to each state's percentage of the total population. Thus New York would get 9.5 per cent of the vaccine as compared to .2 per cent for Delaware, Nevada, Vermont and Wyoming.

'Right-to-know' Laws Create Controversy in General State Authority

HARRISBURG (UP)—The new "right-to-know" laws have been in effect in Pennsylvania for only five days but they already have triggered a sharp controversy in the multi - million dollar General State Authority.

The latest development saw Senate Majority Leader Rowland B. Mahany (R-Crawford), an authority member, insist that the next executive session of the agency, slated for Sept. 19, be opened to press and public or he will boycott it.

Mahany also insisted that Gov. George M. Leader "never opened his mouth" about opening up the meetings of the executive body to the public. Leader said at a recent news conference he was overruled by a majority of the GSA members.

"Leader just sat there and never opened his mouth about opening the meeting," Mahany said in a statement released here. "Had the question come up for a vote, I am certain the majority, at least the Republicans present, would have voted to open the executive session."

Challenges Governor

Mahany said that if the next meeting of the authority is not opened to the press, he will refuse to participate in the session.

"I sponsored this legislation in behalf of newspaper publishers and editors in Pennsylvania because I believe thoroughly in the right of the people to know what is going on, from state government right down to the local communities," Mahany said.

The legislation passed by the 1957 General Assembly was backed by the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers Association, The Pennsylvania Society of Newspaper Editors, and the United Press Editors of Pennsylvania.

Meanwhile, one of the issues which sparked the argument about opening the sessions provoked Sen. M. Harvey Taylor (R-Dauphin) into challenging the governor to make public a list of insurance agents who receive commissions from the GSA.

The public has never been informed concerning the identity of the agents who do business with the multi-million dollar agency.

"Governor Leader has in his possession a list of agents who received commissions from the General State Authority," Taylor said. "If he wants the public to know who received these commissions, I invite him to publish the list."

Concerning Mahany's charge that Leader had not asked for open sessions of the executive meetings of the agency, a spokesman in the governor's office said:

"All it proves is that Senator Mahany is already running for the Republican nomination for governor."

Body Recovered From the River Near Brownsville

The body of Harold D. Smith, 60, a self-employed tinner, was recovered from the Monongahela River near Brownsville yesterday.

Fayette County Asst. Coroner J. F. Timko of California estimated that the body had been in the river about a week.

Smith was identified through papers stuffed in his pants along with $450. He had lived in Brownsville most of his life but his last known address was Pittsburgh.

Timko ruled out the possibility of foul play.

"This is either an accidental death or a suicide," Timko said.

Charles Harris of West Brownsville discovered the body yesterday afternoon when he walked to a river dock to check his boat. He contacted the deputy coroner and members of the West Brownsville Fire Dept. who assisted in removing it.

Charleroi Man In Guilty Plea

John R. Cassidy, Charleroi, pleaded guilty to a larceny charge yesterday in Washington County Court.

Cassidy was accused of stealing $32 from a woman's purse. He was sentenced by Judge Roy I. Carson to serve 23 months, but was paroled to pay the costs.

OBITUARIES

MRS. CHARLES LYNCH

Mrs. Mary Kincaid Lynch, wife of Charles McKenna Lynch, a member of the stock-brokerage firm of Moore, Leonard Lynch in New York, died on Monday in Greensburg following a brief illness. Her age was 72.

Mrs. Lynch was the mother-in-law of Robert Rial, Republican candidate for common pleas court in Westmoreland County in the Nov. 5 election.

Besides her husband, she leaves two sons, Charles McKenna Lynch Jr. and Thomas Lynch 3rd; four daughters, Mrs. Mary Quinn, Miss Catherine Lynch, Mrs. Sarah Rial and Mrs. Marjorie Smith; a sister, Miss Marjorie Kincaid, and nineteen grandchildren.

Services were held yesterday.

ADRIAN (BUCK) RAY

Adrian (Buck) Ray, 63, Gibsonton, died yesterday at 11:45 a. m. in the Charleroi-Monessen Hospital after a long illness.

Mr. Ray had been employed at the Pittsburgh Steel Co. in Monessen and was a member of the Lock Four Volunteer Fire Dept.

He is survived by his wife, Rose; a son, Lewis of Monessen; a sister, Mrs. Mary Sutherland of Avella; a brother, George of Bulger; four grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Friends are being received at the Michael A. Melinchak Funeral Home, Charleroi, from 1 to 5 and 7 to 10 p. m.

Pallone Outlines His Philosophy On Education

Dr. Joseph Pallone, superintendent of Monessen public schools, has informed his teachers that he expects them to "set an example for the students" and to "do their best to promote the city's school system."

Dr. Pallone outlined his educational philosophy during a teachers meeting prior to the opening of the 1957-58 term this week.

"My remarks were offered without criticism or malice," Dr. Pallone stated. "I felt I should explain clearly what I expected from teachers in the Monessen system."

Among other things, Dr. Pallone told the teachers he wanted them to speak and dress professionally, to rigidly enforce student attendance; to take care of school supplies; to take a positive rather than negative approach to teaching; to cooperate fully with student teachers and not to discuss pupil problems anywhere but in the school.

'Nothing New'

"These suggestions are nothing new," Dr. Pallone said. "They are outlined in the professional training of all teachers. I merely repeated them."

Dr. Pallone also directed the teachers to eliminate final examinations.

"We'll spend more time teaching and less time testing," he added.

Student work books will also be eliminated for all studies except the sciences.

Dr. Pallone said he felt the school system should have a "businesslike-atmosphere."

"This can only be accomplished if the teachers set the example by speaking and dressing professionally," he informed.

Principals Important

The Monessen school superintendent also emphasized the importance of school principals. He advised teachers to discuss their problems with them.

In the future, Dr. Pallone said he hoped to have all teachers assigned to a home room. This would establish responsibility for school furniture, he explained.

Teachers were also instructed not to send students from their respective buildings during school time.

Dr. Pallone also urged the teachers to encourage student insurance and banking.

"I will sit in on classes throughout the school term since that is one of my duties as superintendent," Dr. Pallone stated. "I would be neglecting my job if I did not give personal attention to classroom instruction."

Dr. Pallone, who succeeded Dr. Michael Duda as superintendent during the last school term when the latter was elected president of California State Teachers College, said he has been devoting much of his time to problems concerning finances and building improvements.

"With the start of the new school term, I thought it only fair to outline my educational philosophy to our teachers;" he stated.

Quintuplets Are Expected in London

LONDON (UP)—Mrs. Lillian Solly, a 29-year-old mother of four, was told today to prepare for five more.

Doctors said she would give birth to quintuplets Nov. 5.

Her husband, Roy, a hotel cook, left the hospital after hearing the news to buy a drink at the nearest pub.

Local Firemen Complete Course In Fire-fighting

Thirty-two Monessen volunteer firemen successfully completed the recent fire-fighting course at California State Teachers College, Municipal Fire Chief W. Roy McShaffrey announced today.

"Thirty members from the downtown company and two from No. 2 company participated in the school," McShaffrey reported.

The school was co-sponsored by the Western Pennsylvania Fire Chief and Assistant Chiefs Association and by the state Department of Public Instruction.

Tom Gouger, Monessen, was chairman of the 23rd annual summer school. McShaffrey served as co-chairman.

All aspects of modern fire-fighting were outlined during classes.

Latrobe to Vote on Voting Machines

A special referendum will be conducted in Latrobe during the general election Nov. 5 to determine whether voting machines should be installed at polling places.

Borough council has unanimously approved a resolution asking the county commissioners to place the voting machine issue before the voters in the upcoming election.

FIRST TASTE OF SCHOOL LIFE — These five year old Monessen youngsters had their first taste of school life yesterday when they reported for kindergarten classes at Ben Franklin School. Mrs. Ida Siple, one of the city's three kindergarten teachers, was kept busy adjusting the boys and girls to their new routine.

Suggests TB Clinics Be Kept Operating

A state Health Department official said today he will recommend that none of Pennsylvania's 94 tuberculosis clinics be closed on the basis of a recent reevaluation survey.

Dr. Thomas J. Millington, director of the Bureau of Preventive Services, said he will ask that none of the clinics be shut down when he meets with Department Secretary Dr. Berwyn F. Mattison on Sept. 13.

There had been speculation recently that the Monessen clinic would be closed after Dr. Mattison ordered a survey to determine if any consolidations were possible.

Last month the state ordered the termination of the lease on the clinic's rooms at 277 Schoonmaker Ave. as of Nov. 1.

Since then, the Monessen Volunteer Firemen, owners of the building which houses the clinic, have been informed that the lease will be renewed.

Dr. Millington said an examination of the work done at the clinics indicated the saturation point had been reached in their closing and that all were necessary. He said the remaining 94 clinics reflected the incidence of tuberculosis in the state, pointing out that in former years the Commonwealth operated 134 clinics.

The possibility of consolidating clinics was considered to compensate for a departmental budget reduction made by the recent Legislature, according to Dr. Mattison.

Methodist Laymen Plan Institute

Laymen of the Methodist Pittsburgh conference will hold a three day week end institute at the Jumonville Training Center, Sept. 13-15.

Guest speaker will be Don L. Calame, secretary of Methodist men's work, general board of lay activities of the Methodist Church, Chicago. He will speak on the theme, "The Man in the Methodist Men."

There will be workshop sessions on projects, program planning and worship programs.

A three part workshop on public relations is also set.

Bishop James H. Straughn of Baltimore, Md., former bishop of the Pittsburgh area, will also be present.

About 350 or 400 men will attend.

Pythian Lodge Holds Meeting

Knights of Pythians lodge met last night in the Pythian Hall for a regular session with Anthony G. Laneve substituting as presiding officer.

Plans were discussed for a special meeting to be held next Wednesday evening with a program and social time.

On Tuesday evening the Knights and the Pythian Sisters held a corn roast at City Park. There were about 50 members and their families in attendance.

The children were given a treat and there was a program of games and contests. Prizes were won by A. C. Laneve and N. G. Corrick.

County Convention Of Sunday Schools

The 65th annual Westmoreland County Sunday School convention will take place next Wednesday and Thursday in the United Brethren Church, Ligonier.

The event is promoted by the County Council of Christian Education.

Sunday School classes in the county are invited to send one delegate from each department of the school as well as superintendents and ministers.

State Will Build 13 New Parks

HARRISBURG (P) — The Forests and Water Department reported today it was "optimistic" that construction of 13 new state parks will be completed despite a departmental budget cut.

Department Secretary Maurice K. Goddard said at least four parks would be in operation next year and the remainder would be finished in 1959 and 1960. He added the projects would be finished earlier if offshore drilling in Lake Erie proves fruitful because the discovery of oil or gas would swell the Commonwealth's oil and gas lease fund which finances construction of the parks.

Scheduled for completion next year are new recreational facilities at Gouldsboro Lake for Monroe and Wayne counties; Hyner Run on the Sproul State Forest, Clinton County; Bendigo State Park, Elk County; and Hills Creek State Park, Tioga County. The four were among the relatively smaller projects.

Construction and preliminary work has moved steadily at seven other new parks including those in Cambria, Lawrence, Bucks, Greene, York, Mifflin and Potter counties.

The largest new park is a 6,000 acre recreational playground at Glendale, Cambria County, to cost more than $2,500,000. On the final day of the 1957 Legislature, Dr. Goddard promised Senate Republicans he would go ahead with the project.

Early Start Seen

Goddard said the park was in the designing stage, adding that he hoped to receive contract bids this winter and start construction next spring.

Work at two other new parks, in Wyoming and Lancaster counties, have lagged, but Goddard said they should be completed during 1959 because they were relatively small projects.

The total cost of the 13 parks is $6,806,235, a figure that prompted the department to warn last July it might have to defer their construction because of "drastic cuts" made by the recent Legislature. The lawmakers slashed $2,350,000 alone from the departmental budget earmarked for flood control.

Goddard pointed out that the reduction forced the department to use funds planned for park construction in essential flood control and stream clearance projects.

He said park construction also had a stake in bids being opened Sept. 24 for drilling rights on two offshore blocs totaling 36,000 acres in Lake Erie. If oil or gas is discovered, the state is expected to set up a lease-royalty system with producers to funnel a substantial sum into the oil and gas lease fund.

Coroner Handles 36 Cases in August

Thirty-six cases were handled by the Westmoreland County Coroner's office during August, Stephen D. Yoney, Monessen coroner reported today. Thirteen inquests were made.

Yoney's report showed that four persons died following traffic accidents, two committed suicide, one died of burns and another was electrocuted. One homicide occurred during the month.

Heart trouble continued to be the biggest killer, claiming the lives of 24 persons.

Twenty-six males, seven females and three children made up the 36 cases.

Gas Utility Granted Rate Boost by PUC

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Public Utility Commission has granted Manufacturers Light and Heat Co., Pittsburgh, an immediate $1,323,477 annual natural gas rate increase.

The increase was termed a "stopgap" measure to help cover a boost in cost of wholesale natural gas purchased by the utility from southwestern suppliers. The company estimated the bills of its 247,000 consumers in 25 counties would be raised 1.9 cents per thousand cubic feet under the new schedules.

The rate hike was one of two proposed by Manufacturers last March in two schedules. Hearings continued today in the second proposal totaling $4,956,600 to cover increased costs other than those for purchased gas. Both requests had been suspended until Nov. 12-13 pending hearings.

In lifting the "cost-of-gas" suspension Wednesday the PUC said it was to offset the increased cost of purchased gas and would not mean additional revenue for the company. It added the hike would be applied to a $1,596,000 increase in gas costs granted wholesalers last July 14 by the Federal Power Commission.

Subject to Refunds

However, the PUC said the state boost was still subject to possible refunds, because the FPC has the wholesale price increase under review pending a final order. If the FPC ultimately lowers the increases, Manufacturers would make corresponding cuts in consumers bills and refund the difference.

The firm completed testimony last July to back up its contention that the proposed second rate hike of $4,956,600 was justified but returned to submit additional information requested by the commission. The commission was expected to take up the remainder of the week in cross examination to develop the validity of Manufacturers' evidence.

PUC Examiner Maurice Claster said it was "unlikely" that the protestants against the boost would be able to present their case at the current hearings. The protestants, including the cities of Pittsburgh, Washington and New Castle, were expected to give evidence at a future hearing.

The utility serves consumers in Adams, Allegheny, Armstrong, Beaver, Bedford, Butler, Chester, Clarion, Clearfield, Elk, Fayette, Franklin, Fulton, Greene, Indiana, Jefferson, Lawrence, McKean, Mercer, Somerset, Venango, Warren, Washington, Westmoreland and York counties.

Little Rock Events Not Surprising

WHILE the events at Little Rock, Ark., in recent days are disturbing and somewhat ominous, they can hardly be surprising to anyone who has tried to think through the legal and social problems connected with enforcing the Supreme Court's decision outlawing racial segregation in the public schools.

There has been a lot of wishful thinking in high places to the effect that obedience to this decision could be accomplished over a reasonable term by some vague process of social evolution. Discrimination against children in the use of public facilities is so foreign to American principles, it has been held, that it cannot survive and will expire in due course if everybody tries to be patient and understanding.

This has sounded very good to reasonable and thoughtful people on both sides of the Mason-Dixon Line. Any sensible American wants to avoid a forcible solution of any public problem if it can possibly be avoided. And if everybody concerned in this business were sensible and reasonable and thoughtful, it would work out the way the wishful thinkers have led themselves to believe that it might.

* * *

IT HAPPENS, however, that many people who are concerned with this problem or who have injected themselves into it are not sensible, nor are they reasonable or thoughtful. Some, it is apparent, are not even law-abiding.

So now we have the Governor of Arkansas using the National Guard to prevent obedience to an order of a United States district judge. Apparently under the orders of Governor Faubus, troops have actually removed Negro children from a public school building.

This could be the point at which it is decided whether the Constitution, as interpreted by the Supreme Court, is the law of the land or whether it isn't. And if Governor Faubus persists in his defiance, some ways and means are going to have to be discovered by which it can be ended.

We do not think there is any danger of civil war; we do not like even to mention the term.

But at the same time, we think it is plain foolish for anyone to suppose that, in some of the southern states, this problem is going to be solved by sweet reason. These people continue to say — and they give every indication of meaning what they say — that they are not going to permit Negro children to attend public schools with white children.

It seems to us irresponsible for President Eisenhower, Attorney General Brownell and any other officials who are concerned with this matter to ignore what Governor Faubus is doing and to go on assuming that this kind of opposition will disappear of itself. It seems much more likely to grow stronger if it is not effectively checked.

Russians Won't 'Say the Word'

THE DISARMAMENT negotiations at London, which have followed an up-and-down pattern from the beginning, now seem to have taken another down turn. Hope has turned to doubt, and although the responsible American officials, Secretary Dulles and Ambassador Stassen, still speak for publication of the possibility of eventual agreement, nobody seems to be taking them very seriously.

The reason, of course, for the latest note of discouragement, is the refusal of the Soviet Union to do business. Several times the conference has been reported to be almost to the point of an agreement, at least on the essentials of some "first step" disarmament arrangement. But each time the Soviet delegate has backed off.

This is a familiar pattern. Ever since the closing months of World War II, when Roosevelt and Churchill started to arrange the conclusion of the fighting, to provide for the occupation and to talk tentatively about the kind of world they wanted to establish, we have had to put up with these off-again, on-again tactics.

We have found that, once the Russians were prepared to do business, as in the case of the Austrian peace treaty, a satisfactory contract could be written in a couple of days.

But if the Russians don't want to do business, you can't reach an agreement no matter how many agonizing months you are willing to talk with them about it.

It is hard to escape a conclusion that the Russians don't want to do business on disarmament — at least not now. Mr. Stassen has been sent back to London to talk some more and says he is going to be "patient and persistent". But if patience and persistence could produce a peaceable world, we would have had it a long time ago.

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain had it about right the other day when he said that "real progress" on disarmament depends entirely upon the Soviet Union.

"You have but to say the word and real progress is assured," Mr. Macmillan wrote to Premier Bulganin.

If we are to be honest with ourselves, we have to admit that there is no real sign that the Russians are about to "say the word".

Merry-Go-Round—

Ike Tries to Hold Down Living Costs

(Editor's Note: While Drew Pearson is touring the Mediterranean, his column is written by his junior partner.)

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON. —. President Eisenhower is counting on government economy and indirect controls to hold down living costs, which he considers the nations's No. 1 domestic problem.

He made this clear the other day at a White House staff meeting.

He stands 100 per cent behind the Budget Bureau's directive to all department heads ordering them to hold the line on spending, Ike said. This remark apparently was aimed at some who have complained against budget boss Percy Brundage's rigid control over federal expenditures.

The President said he also believes in indirect controls to limit credit and discourage people from borrowing too much.

Dollar Shrinks

It's no secret that Republicans are worried about losing votes over skyrocketing prices. Yet living costs, already at an historic high, are still climbing.

The steel increase will push up the prices of automobiles and appliances. Higher processing costs should boost food prices. Rents and services are also expected to continue up.

Government economists estimate that the dollar's purchasing power is shrinking at the phenomenal rate of six cents per year. This is hitting Dad in the pocketbook and Mom in the market basket. Fixed incomes, insurance policies, and savings accounts, in particular, are dwindling in value.

The voters can be expected to express their displeasure at the polls.

Note: A mere one-per cent jump in living costs takes about $2.8 billion out of the consumers' pockets in a year.

Subs Slip Away

It has our admirals scratching their heads, but the three submarines Russia gave Egypt seem to have vanished. American naval intelligence reports the subs no longer are at their Alexandria base.

What makes this all the more mystifying is that the Mediterranean is so clear and shallow subs can't travel far without being spotted.

One ominous report has it that the three subs have slipped through the Suez Canal into the Red Sea to harass Israeli shipping in the Gulf of Aqaba.

Washington Whispers

G-man J. Edgar Hoover may be asked to investigate his best friend, Harry Duncan, who runs the Little Tavern hamburger stands. The two men are inseparable companions. However, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has complained that some Little Taverns have refused to serve Negroes. The complaint may be forwarded to the FBI. . The FBI chief delivered a stirring defense of civil rights the other day at a private strategy session inside the Justice Department. He can't be accused of grandstanding, because his remarks weren't supposed to leak out. Hoover has always been careful about safeguarding citizens' rights. . .The FBI's amiable press agent, Lou Nichols, is cozying up to Vice President Nixon. Lou has his eye on J. Edgar's job, is keeping close to the powers-that-might-be. . . Vice President Nixon and Attorney General Brownell spatting over New York politics. Caught in the middle is handsome, young Deputy Attorney General Bill Rogers, who works for Brownell but is Nixon's close friend.

Democrats' Dilemma

The Democrats are having as much trouble as the Republicans untangling the candidates for next year's crucial California election.

Most Democratic leaders favor a combination of State Attorney General Pat Brown for Governor and Congressman Clair Engle for the Senate. Engle agreed to this setup at a secret meeting of the California Democratic delegation in Congress just before adjournment.

"But I think it's time Pat Brown cleared up any misunderstanding with a firm announcement taking himself out of the speculation for the Senate," Engle told his colleagues.

Congressman Harry Sheppard, dean of the delegation, agreed to phone Brown and inquire bluntly about his 1958 intentions.

However, Brown's office reported he was in Hawaii for an indefinite period. Actually he was vacationing at millionaire Ed Pauley's swank estate on Coconut Island, where the oil king reportedly dangled a $500,000 campaign fund offer if Brown stays out of the governorship race.

Pauley wants Brown to keep out of the gubernatorial contest as a favor to his close friend, GOP Governor "Goody" Knight.

What Civil Rights Law Means

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Here are answers to questions most frequently asked about the new right-to-vote law which occupied Congress 63 days and produced 115 speeches in the Senate.

Mr. Drummond

Question — How badly is the new right-to-vote law needed?

Answer — In eight Southern states there is an adult Negro population of more than 3,750,000. These figures are from the 1950 census. Of these, only 850,000, or 23 per cent, are even registered and fewer are ever allowed to get to the polls. Following are the figures by states:

State	Potential Negro Voters	Registered Negroes	Per Cent
Alabama	516,245	53,336	10.3
Arkansas	232,191	67,851	29.2
Georgia	633,697	163,389	25.6
Louisiana	510,090	161,410	31.6
Mississippi	497,354	19,367	4.0
South Carolina	390,024	98,890	25.3
Virginia	422,670	84,931	20.0
Texas	550,992	209,297	38.0
Totals	3,753,263	858,471	22.3

These figures take on more meaning when compared with the rest of the country. In last year's presidential election 77.3 per cent of persons of voting age actually voted, not merely registered to vote. In Connecticut it was 76.6 per cent, in Utah 76.1 per cent, in Massachusetts 75.3 per cent, in New Hampshire 75.2 per cent. In the 1955 Gubernatorial election in Mississippi, for example, only 4 per cent of the Negro population was registered and little more than one per cent, or 8,000, voted. It is evident that something more than indifference is keeping Negro citizens from exercising their right to vote.

Question — Is the right-to-vote law constitutional?

Answer — Some argue that it isn't. They contend that the states alone have authority to determine voting qualifications and that the new act undercuts that authority.

The other side of the argument is that the right to vote is a constitutional right, that Congress has the authority to implement a constitutional right, that the states still determine voting qualifications since the new law requires only that the voting qualifications be uniformly applied to all, that Congress is dealing only with the right to vote for federal offices — President and Congress.

Sometime the Supreme Court will undoubtedly have to rule.

Question — Will the new law do the job?

Answer — No one can be sure. It is unjustified to say that it won't work until it has been tried. Conceivably ways will be found to get around its protections. But it puts into the hands of the federal government new powers to guarantee equal voting rights. It makes it illegal to intimidate would-be voters. It enables federal judges to enjoin state officials from refusing to register qualified persons and gives federal judges authority to impose fines up to $300 and 45 days in jail without jury trial. It calls for a new assistant attorney general in charge of civil rights cases. It creates a six-member, Senate-confirmed commission with subpoena power to investigate charges that citizens are deprived of their voting rights and to recommend to Congress within two years whether present laws are adequate. The new law certainly deserves a full, fair and faithful trial.

Question — What party will benefit most politically?

Answer — First, let's recognize that there is politics on both sides in this matter. Some of the law's opponents and some of its advocates have responded to political opportunism. As to which party will profit most at the polls, I think the facts are these: Senate Democrats, by taking the lead in enacting a somewhat diluted but still significant measure have reduced the political advantage which would naturally flow to the Republicans. But Republican votes made the law possible. The Republican Party was overwhelmingly united behind it. The Democratic Party was substantially divided on it. Republican progress in the South will be set back, but the trend of Negro voters to the Republican side in the big cities outside the South will be increased and may affect national elections.

Republicans in Congress Grumbling at Ike

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UP)—An insider's view of last week's Wisconsin senatorial election is that the Republican Party is utterly disorganized from the top down.

Not merely disorganized in Wisconsin but, disorganized in all directions from the White House to the most remote election precincts.

Mr. Wilson

Political events are likely to flow from that judgment. It is an opinion widely held among congressional Republicans who were party figures before President Eisenhower entered politics.

Event No. 1 is likely to be a move by congressional Republicans — the regulars — to take over conduct of next year's congressional election campaign, including finances. That is in the works although the final decision to go it alone has not been made. It is not the kind of political maneuver which would be ballyhooed to the public by formal and specific announcement.

More likely, the word would be passed through political channels to the grass roots, especially to the Republicans who might be expected to shower down with campaign contributions. The word would be: That the two legislative campaign committees — senatorial and congressional — would undertake to master-mind the 1958 congressional campaign, collect and distribute party funds and shape party policies, by-passing as far as possible both the White House and the Republican National Committee.

This strategy began to take form as the bad news finally was toted up on the day after Wisconsin's senatorial polling. It represents the political thinking of some Republican congressional veterans who are convinced that there is not now a useful coat tail in a car load of Eisenhower administration policies.

Politics is a complex, demanding profession to be mastered, if at all, by hard work and experience from the precincts up. The old Republican pros around town with master's degrees accuse the White House of responsibility for what they regard as the utter disorganization of the Republican Party.

Such sentiment was developing even before last week's defeat of Wisconsin's Republican senatorial nominee by a Democrat who consistently had been a political loser in that state. Some congressional Republican regulars had been muttering among themselves that they would be happy to escape an Eisenhower endorsement in their next campaign. Others grumbled that an opposition blast from the President surely would waft them to victory in the next election.

Behind The News—

Molotov's New Job May Be Important

By CHARLES M. McCANN

Vyacheslav M. Molotov's new job as Soviet Russian ambassador to Outer Mongolia may prove to be an important one.

Certainly the assignment constitutes a humiliating demotion for a man who had been in the forefront of Russian leadership for 40 years.

It has been suggested that perhaps Communist Leader Nikita S. Khrushchev was indulging his heavy sense of humor by sending Molotov to the remote Asian Soviet satellite country.

But it does happen that Outer Mongolia is becoming an area of rivalry between Russia and Communist China.

Closed To Travel

It happens also that at the same time Molotov's appointment was announced the Soviet government closed 120,000 square miles of territory in the same part of central Asia to foreign travel.

There is also the fact that for several years Molotov was the Kremlin's master mind on Far Eastern affairs.

In one of Molotov's many changes in official status, he was "relieved" of the post of foreign minister in 1949. He remained a vice premier in the government.

Not long afterward, it was reported that Molotov had been relieved of administrative duties so he could concentrate on the Far East.

It probably was not a coincidence that at this time Russia started to cook up the Korean War which opened in 1950 when the North Korean War which opened in 1950 when the North Korean Communists, Russian - trained, Russian - armed and Russian-directed, invaded South Korea.

The Korean War was not much of a success for the Russians. They had to get the Chinese Communists to intervene after Gen. Douglas MacArthur smashed the north Korean army to pieces.

Chinese Control Area

The result of that was that the Chinese Reds, not the Russians, are now the controlling influence in North Korea.

Outer Mongolia for several centuries was under the nominal rule of China. The Russian Communists moved in there afte World War I. In 1924, Outer Mongolia was made a "people's republic" and a Soviet satellite.

There have been plain indications that the Chinese communists do not intend to leave the Russians in undisputed control of Outer Mongolia forever. Among other things, they have started to move "laborers" into the country. These laborers actually are colonists.

If the Russians have decided to strengthen their position in outer Mongolia, they could not have picked a better man than Molotov for the job.

The Lighter Side—

Some Notable Events Of the Past Summer

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UP) —These are the fleet and shrinking days that tie up the tag end of summer. It's a time for stock-taking, a summing up of the hot and heavy months behind us. Was it a normal summer? Yes, desperately so.

In Singapore, a 51-year-old Indian barber with three wives and two children invited 400 guests to a Hindu ear-boring ceremony for a cat which had strolled into his house one rainy night. In repayment for the luck he said she had brought him in prosperous business and lottery winnings, he bought her $65 gold earrings.

In Greenwich Village, New York, old-timers mourned the passing of Joe Gould, who years ago told his biographer why he was the last of the Bohemians: "Some are dead, some are in the booby hatch, and some are in the advertising business." To the funeral, a friend brought some of Gould's poems, including:

Reconciliation

I would like to bury the hatchet,
But I fear I would make it dull,
Or at least I would badly scratch it,
If I buried it in your skull.

In London, Britons were made merrier when a newspaper decided to give away the living ultimate in a circulation contest—a man. The prize was Retired Maj. Edgar Christopher Charles Elkins Powell, 49, and the winners so far have made no complaints. Among things he was guaranteed willing to do: "Ask for a raise for you. . .give the neighbors a piece of your mind. . .propose for you. . ."

In California, a man paid $1,500 to see one performance of the opera "The Trojans" with his wife. The performance was in London, England. They flew both ways. "I really wanted to see it," explained Allen Taylor, of Millbrae, Calif.

Gone To Waste

In Atlanta, Ga., a young lady was named "Miss Cottonwaste of 1957," a title which may open the way for a "Miss Slagpile" in Pittsburgh and a "Miss Sawdust" in the lumbermill country.

In Roghudi, a tiny town at the tip of the Italian boot, civic life ground to a standstill one rare June day. The amorous mayor, 40, having been spurned by the pretty schoolteachers, 28, kidnaped her. The police chief gave chase into the mountains. City government took a holiday.

Two flagpole sitters sat simultaneously on 50-foot poles over Montreal; an electric - motor-driven vibrating bed, for muscle-relaxing, was announced in Waynesboro, Va.; Mohawk Indian chiefs took over a 15-mile - square patch of land along Schoharie Creek at Fort Hunter, N. Y., in the name of their nation, declaring a 1784 treaty gave it to them.

Late in August, a Columbia University scientist announced at a Stanford, Calif., meeting that by genetic tinkering he had created bacteria monsters capable of reproduction. And in Glendale, Calif. this month a furrier was found marketing shrunken mink heads for lapel and handbag ornaments. A normal summer — prepping us for easeful autumn.

Ozarks Not in MVL's 1957 Plans?

If reports from a usually reliable source mean anything the Monessen Ozarks may be "skipped" when the aligning of teams begins next season in the Mon Valley Baseball League . . . According to a story out of Charleroi, "This was the second year in a row the Ozarks did an el foldo before the season came to an end, a fact that will legislate strongly against them when they start counting heads next spring." Continuing, the article reads, "In this book West Newton and Van Voorhis rate priority over Van Voorhis and Monessen", if current plans for a strong six-team league are carried out in '57 . . . The story admits that the geographical location and drawing potential of the Ozarks will be a point in the local entry's favor.

John Thomas, who cavorted on the gridiron for Donora just a few short years ago, has returned for his final year at Southwest Missouri State College, in Springfield, Mo., where he has lettered for two years at fullback . . . Chuck Zolak, standout quarterback on last year's Rostraver Junior High football team, has transferred to Donora. And it's no secret that his family moved there to give him an opportunity to play in the Big Five Conference . . . Incidentally Zolak is a nephew of Andy Kuzemka, Monessen High assistant coach . . . District soccer teams should note a meeting set for tonight at Washington beginning at 8 o'clock.

Russ Stone, Charleroi, and Max Hulse of Pittsburgh, will clash for the Nemacolin Country Club golf title this Sunday . . . Stone advanced to the finals by trimming Andy Tokar of Brownsville, while Hulse spilled Ad Spragg, of Charleroi . . . McKeesport's Midget footballers, National champions last season, started their 1957 season off with a bang with a 21-0 Labor Day victory over the Lower Burrell Midgets . . . At least 3,000 fans attended the game . . . Washington and Jefferson College is certainly improving its athletic facilities. The latest move has been to construct permanent bleachers, with team dressing rooms beneath the stands at College Field, the Prexy gridders' home.

Notre Dame Really 'Irish' This Year

Whether Notre Dame improves its grid record this season or not remains to be seen but Coach Terry Brennan can truly say his team is "Fighting Irish" what with names the like of Kevin Burke, Ed Sullivan, Patrick Dolan, John McGinley, Mike Dugan, Patrick Healy, John Quinn, Dick Lynch, Doug McGinn, etc. . . . The usual "alphabet boys" are also on the South Bend squad, however, like Art Debetaz, John Harezlak, George Iso, Mike Muehlbauer, Bob Nicolazzi and Bob Pietrzak . . . Grover Ferguson, III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Ferguson, Jr., of Brownsville, who was an all-Big Six cage choice last season, has received a full-time scholarship at Pitt for track, the first Brownie (track) athlete so honored since Brownsville and South Brownsville merged in 1934.

Today's Sports Parade—

Lawson Little Censors PGA on Ryder Choices

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP) — Lawson Little, long a fabled fighter of the fairways, defiantly ignored a serious heart condition today to take a hefty swipe at the PGA for leaving Sam Snead and Jimmy Demaret off the Ryder Cup team.

Little, the former U.S. Open champion and one of the greatest match players of all time, suffered a heart attack just a month ago. Yet, even shackled to his bed by doctor's orders, old "Cannonball" couldn't help but rise up indignantly at the snub to his two storied compatriots.

From his cardiac cot, Little writes wrathfully:

"There is no question in my mind but what Snead and Demaret, from the way they played this year and because of what they have done for the game and for the PGA, should have been honored with places on the Ryder Cup team.

Says Pressure Applied

"The rule which requires a player to play in the last two PGA championships to be eligible for a Ryder Cup berth is a petty and small way of trying to force players to play in the championship," he added. "Actually, the best way to get the players to support the PGA championship is to make the event attractive, not try to do it by legislation."

Absolutely for free, he tossed in an observation on Dick Mayer, the man who had to defeat his thirsts for living before he came on this year to win both the Open and the world championships.

"Dick certainly has won a couple of great ones," writes Little, who won his share with victories in such events as the Canadian, Texas, Los Angeles, Shawnee and St. Petersburg opens as well as the San Francisco match play and Inverness four-ball. "Mayer long has been a fine striker of the ball, particularly with his driving and putting.

"But," admonishes Little, "I certainly hope he will make a good Open champion and handle himself in a way to bring credit to the title, the game and our profession."

The husky Little admits to being outspoken and recalls, with a faraway grin, the year he beat Gene Sarazen in a playoff for the U.S. Open championship at Canterbury. They had only played three or four holes when a man approached Little, who was leading by two shots, and asked him:

"Do you breathe on the backswing or when you are hitting down on the ball?"

"I don't know," Little growled, "and you look old enough to know when you ought to draw your breath. But let me tell you something, mister. If I start thinking about this and blow my lead I'm going to come looking for you with this brassie I'm carrying and you won't care much about breathing."

Hallers Defeat Umpires

Umpires do sometimes lose decisions. That was proven here last night.

Paced by the heavy hitting of "Doc" Destefano the Italian Hall entry of the local City Softball League topped the Monessen Softball Umpires' Association team, 12-6, in an exhibition tilt.

Destefano clouted two doubles and a single to lead the Hallers as Steve Hardoby's lads came back from a 4-0 deficit to post the victory.

Six runs in the fifth inning spelled the difference, putting Italian Hall ahead to stay.

John Fedarko was the batting star for the "umps" as he blasted out a homer and two doubles.

Defensive stars of the game were Gus August, Umpire shortstop, and Rich DiBiaso, the MSUA first baseman.

Aussies - Yanks In National Title Matches

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UP)—It's the United States vs. Australia in three major matches today with Yank veterans Dick Savitt, Vic Seixas and Herb Flam shooting for berths in the quarter-finals of the National tennis championships.

Two other Americans—Budge Patty of Los Angeles and Lt. Clifton Mayne of Ft. Monmouth, N.J., breezed into the round of eight Tuesday along with top-seeded Ashley Cooper of Australia. But today the ancient tennis feud between the U.S. and Australia breaks out all over.

If the three American veterans come through it will give the U.S. five of the eight slots in the quarter finals and increase the home forces' chances of regaining the crown won a year ago by Aussie Ken Rosewall.

Seixas drew Roy Emerson, Flam was matched against Bob Howe and Savitt tangled with the toughest of the Aussie three—Mal Anderson, whose current form indicates he'll soon become the No. 2 Australian in place of Neale Fraser.

Two other quarter - finals matched four foreigners — third-seeded Sven Davidson against Bobby Wilson of England and Kurt Nielsen of Denmark against Luis Ayala of Chile.

Wimbledon champion Althea Gibson of New York and second-seeded Louise Brough led five women into the quarter - finals Tuesday and two British girls were favored to move in today.

Fourth-seeded Shirley Bloomer of England met Janet Hopps of Seattle and seventh-seeded Ann Haydon, also of England, was paired against Sally Moore of Bakersfield, Calif.

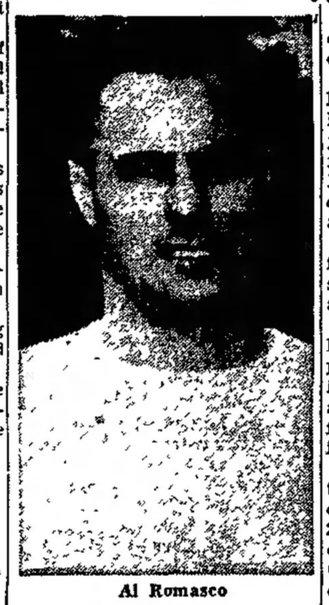
Robinson Ends Layoff

GREENWOOD LAKE, N.Y. (UP) — Middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson, who defends his title against welter champion Carmen Basilio in Yankee Stadium Sept. 23, will box today through Sunday after enjoying a layoff of two days from his training chores. Robinson thus far has boxed a total of 28 rounds in camp, 14 of them during the long holiday week end.

Junior High Squad In Daily Workouts

Al Romasco, Monessen Junior High grid coach, is currently working with one of the largest junior high squads ever to report at the local school.

Assisted by Joe Gladys, Romasco is drilling the Puppies every evening at Ninth Street Park.



Al Romasco

Despite the large squad numerically, there is a lack of beef and experience on the team.

Only two veterans are back from last season with Dave Mallino and David Kiefer returning from last year's team which posted a 3-2 record, losing to Charleroi and Donora. Victories were posted over Monongahela, Canonsburg and Brownsville.

Many of the gridders reporting for the Junior High squad this season are Midget League graduates, Romasco reports.

Although pleased with such a large turnout as the 58 who reported for examinations and opening drills this week, Romasco and Gladys will have their hands full weeding out the squad to get it down to working proportions.

The five-game 1957 schedule is the same as last season's, card, opening with Brownsville on Sept. 25 (a Wednesday), meeting Donora on Oct. 2, Monongahela on Oct. 9, Charleroi Oct. 16 and Canonsburg on Oct. 30.

Fullmer Easily Tops Chico Vejar

WEST JORDAN, Utah (UP) — Utah strong - boy Gene Fullmer hopefully awaited a second chance at the world's middleweight title he once held today after improving his claim as the number one contender for the crown.

The hard - hitting Utah boxer earned a unanimous victory and new respect Wednesday night by outpointing Chico Vejar in a 10-round nationally-televised bout.

Immediately after the victory, manager Marv Jenson began negotiations for a title bout for his fighter.

Fullmer utilized his favorite weapon — body punching — to win the verdict.

It was a smashing right hook to the stomach in the third round which sent Vejar to the canvas for a seven count in the only knockdown of the fight.

Basilio Tapers Off

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N.Y. (UP) —Welterweight champion Carmen Basilio, in training here for his Sept. 23 bout with middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson, resumes boxing on Friday after a day off. His handlers said Basilio is reaching his peak too fast and ought to taper off a bit.

Frank Leahy

Leahy Refused Steeler Job

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Former Notre Dame coach Frank Leahy was asked to coach the Pittsburgh Steelers last January, Art Rooney, president of the team, said Wednesday night.

Rooney, who signed Buddy Parker to the job last week, said Leahy thought the offer over for a week and turned it down. The feeler to Leahy was put out when former Steeler Coach Walter Kiesling took ill after conclusion of the 1956 campaign.

The Steeler president said four other college coaches were asked to take the job, but all refused.

'Stock' Title Race At South Park

The 50-lap season championship race is slated at South Park on Saturday night (Sept. 7).

It's the third of the season championship series — Bob Lucci of Monaca having won the 50-lapper at Claridge Speedway and Joe Mihalic of Harrison City at Washington Raceway.

Trying to win a race on the tight South Park oval is like trying to buck traffic at the Liberty Tubes around five o'clock. That's why there will be no favorites — at least for the first 49 laps.

Campbell with Browns

PASADENA, Calif. (UP) — Milt Campbell, the Olympic decathlon champion and former high hurdles ace at Indiana University, will report to the Cleveland Browns of the National Football League this week as a candidate for a halfback post. Cleveland coach Paul Brown said he hadn't seen Campbell in action but added his "tremendous speed" should qualify him for a halfback spot.

Coaches Single Out Promising '57 Candidates

Monessen High grid mentor Armand Niccolai today singled out several linemen who have shown well in practice drills to date and may be in the starting lineup against Windber next Saturday night.

"At the guard slots we (the coaches) have liked the work of Bob Pauline, Terry Throop and Vince Pascarella," stated Niccolai.

Line coach Nick Kuzemka singled out Pauline, 160-pound senior, as one of the most promising middle-of-the-line prospects followed closely by Terry Throop, 175-pound junior, sidelined for a short time with injuries but now back in action, and Vince Pascarella, who's 202 pounds can be used nicely to bolster the "beef" average up front.

Moving along to the tackle slots the Hound mentors have watched the work of James (Bobo) Aldrich with interest, despite his small stature (5-8, 168) and Big Ed Allen who tips the scales at a neat 260, on offense. Defensively Charles Chester, 180-pound junior, has impressed the coaches in recent scrimmages.

At the pivot post Tom Churan, 168-pound junior has been holding down the snapper-back duties and may get the starting nod..

The Greyhoud mentor stated at yesterday's drills that "our success this year will depend mainly on our middle-of-the-line blocking." "If we expect to get our offense jelling we must spring our backs up the middle, so much depends on the boys named at those positions."

Early reports from the Windber camp indicate a large turnout of candidates this season, although several veterans of the 1956 squad which posted a 6-3 mark last season, losing only to Johnstown, Altoona and Pittsburgh North Catholic, are missing.

APERL Bowling Season Underway

Pittsburgh Steel Company's Allenport mill recreation group, the APERL, opened its bowling season last night with 180 participants.

The league will roll at 6:30 and 8:30 o'clock every Wednesday with the season divided into thirds.

Champions will be determined by total pins. No. Five Finishing Department is the defending champion and started the '57 season off in fine fashion last night with a 3-0 slate over the Police Department.

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF

Neglect of Details

One of the things that gives golf its tremendous fascination is that neglect of a seemingly minor detail can wreck the entire swing. You may, for instance, think you are swinging well at the ball; but because you are going slightly astray in taking your stance, you are ruining the whole thing. But golf is like that. The little things can be extremely important.

One detail, frequently overlooked, is getting the weight back through the heels at the start of the swing. A lot of players seem to forget this detail in their anxiety to do something else correctly — like starting the clubhead straight back from the ball. Starting the clubhead back straight away from the ball is very important, but it won't help much if you've started the swing with the weight too far forward. Both things are important, you see, and are inter-dependent.

The best way to know when you have your weight back where it should be, is to feel that you could lift up your toes inside your shoes. It's as simple as that.

Near $800,000 Gate Seen For Sugar - Basilio

NEW YORK (UP)—Rapidly increasing ticket orders since the Labor Day week end have bolstered the confidence of International Boxing Club officials that the Sugar Ray Robinson - Carmen Basilio fight will draw at least $767,626.

That was the gate attracted by Robinson's fight with Randy Turpin of England at the Polo Grounds, Sept. 12, 1951; and it's the gate-target for Sugar Ray's defense of the middleweight crown against Basilio at Yankee Stadium, Sept. 23.

There was a lull in the sales during the 10-day dispute between Robinson and the IBC over theater-television, but that dispute was settled a week ago today.

Since then both fighters have been training vigorously at their camps — Robinson at Greenwood Lake, N.Y., and Basilio at Alexandria Bay, N.Y.

Dudey 'Mum' on 6-11 Cage Star

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Duquesne University basketball coach Dudey Moore said Wednesday he didn't know whether Warren Warnell Jones, 6-foot, 11-inch floor star from Conroe, Tex., would enroll at Duquesne.

"All I know is what I read in the newspapers." Moore said, concerning reports Jones would enter Duquesne. "I certainly hope it's true."

Another prospective freshman recruit included Willie Joe Hunter, former Meadville High School star who has enrolled at Duquesne after three years in the Air Force.

Major League Teams Recalling Farm Hands

By UNITED PRESS

With the 25-player limit lifted, most of the major league teams are recalling their best farmhands for some late-season experience.

The Chicago White Sox, hampered by injuries all year, have ordered five minor leaguers to report next Monday before the club makes its last Eastern swing. They are pitchers Stover McIlwain, Davenport, Don Rudolph, Louisville, and Jim McDonald, Indianapolis; first baseman Ron Jackson, Indianapolis, and outfielder Jim Landis, recently sent to Indianapolis.

Catcher Earl Battey, who played the early part of the season with the White Sox, was recalled from Los Angeles but will not join the team until Sept. 16.

Yanks Recall Eight

The New York Yankees recalled first baseman Marv Throneberry, outfielder Norm Siebern, catcher John Blanchard and pitcher Mark Freeman from Denver; pitcher Jim Coates, shortstop Tom Carroll and third baseman Dick Sanders from Richmond, and pitcher Rudy Serrett from Peoria.

Ten players were recalled by the Cincinnati Redlegs, pending the end of the minor league competition. They include outfielder Chico Alvarez and pitcher Pat Scantlebury, Havana; shortstop Bobby Durnbaugh, Rochester; pitcher Charley Rabe, Seattle; catcher Dutch Dotterer and pitchers John Brechin, Claude Osteen and Jerry Davis, Nashville; third baseman Curt Flood and pitcher Johnny Oldham, Savannah.

The Redlegs also announced the release of pitcher Art Fowler to Seattle, while the Detroit Tigers repurchased the contract of pitcher Chuck Daniels from Charleston.

Dodgers Beckon Seven

The Brooklyn Dodgers beckoned seven players from Montreal — pitchers Bob Darnell, Fred Kipp and Rene Valdez, catchers Joe Pignatano and Herb Olson, first baseman Jim Gentile and outfielder Bob Wilson.

Recalled by the Dodgers from St. Paul were third baseman Dick Gray, outfielder Don Demeter and third baseman Bob Lillis.

The Chicago Cubs recalled 11 players, including outfielder Solly Drake, pitcher Don Kaiser and infielder Casey Wise from Portland, outfielder Bob Lennon from San Diego, and outfielder Bobby Del Greco from Montreal.

Friend Blanks Giants by 2-0

Groat Clubs Two Hits to Pace Bucs

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Bob Friend pitched a seven-hitter and Dick Groat cracked a single and a double to drive in both runs as the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the New York Giants, 2-0.

The loss for the Giants very nearly eliminated them from the National League pennant race. The win for last place Pittsburgh put them one game out of seventh place.

Friend, going the distance, posted his 11th victory of the season and his third shutout in a game that took only one hour and 55 minutes. At one stretch, he retired 14 batters until Whitey Lockman got his second hit of the night in the ninth inning.

Mike McCormick, 18-year-old Giant bonus southpaw, hurled his first complete game in the majors. He struck out six batters and allowed nine hits.

The Pirates scored in the first inning when Geene Freese drew the first of four Pirate walks and came around on Groat's double to left.

The same combination brought the Pirates their other tally in the third inning when Freese doubled off the left field wall and Groat followed with a single.

Freese was forced to leave the game in the fifth inning when he pulled a muscle in his left thigh while rounding second base.

Waner Concedes Braves Pennant

TAMPA, Fla. (UP)—Paul Waner, a batting tutor for Milwaukee, conceded today the Braves can start making their World Series plans.

The ex-Pittsburgh Pirates outfielder entered a hospital here Wednesday for treatment for tuberculosis. Armed with a portable radio to listen to the series next month, he was "feeling fine enough to chase a rabbit."

Waner, 54, was ordered to enter a sanitarium by his Milwaukee doctor who diagnosed his illness and said he might be cured in six to eight months since it was caught in the early stages.

He had nothing but praise for the Braves, a "club with well-balanced players who'll hit most anything you can throw at them."

Mantle Feeling Low As Injury Sidelines Him

NEW YORK (UP) — Downcast Mickey Mantle, about as blue as a ball player can be, bowed his head and said, "it's eating me up inside."

Ordered to the sidelines because of a painful case of "shin splints," Mantle couldn't be more unhappy if he had been banished to some faraway isle.

"I just hate to sit on the bench," muttered the Yankees' center fielder through clenched lips after he sat out the first eight innings of Wednesday night's game with the Red Sox and grounded out weakly as a pinch-hitter in the ninth.

"Here I was thinking I'd play in 154 games this season and now this has to happen," he said, looking down at his tightly-taped ankles. "What bothers me most is that I'm not able to help the club."

Mantle's malady has many outsiders inquiring as to what shin splints actually are.

"It's a pulled ligament right around the ankle," Mickey explained. "Generally, you get 'em in the spring because of the soft outfields in Florida, but this thing just hit me now."

'Magic Numbers' Still 15, 17 for Pennants

By UNITED PRESS

The "magic numbers" remained unchanged today for the pennant-bound Milwaukee Braves and New York Yankees.

Both teams were beaten Wednesday night, so the Braves' number still is 15 and the Yankees' number is 17.

If the Braves win 15 of their remaining 22 games, they will clinch the National League pennant even if second-place St. Louis wins all its remaining contests. The Yankees will clinch the American League flag if they win 17 of their remaining 20 games, even if second-place Chicago wins 'em all.

Injured Braves Return

MILWAUKEE (UP) — Pitcher Bob Buhl, out since Aug. 18 with a strained back, and center fielder Bill Bruton, out since July 11 with a twisted knee, will be able to increase the tempo of their workouts next week and more than likely will be ready to play for the Milwaukee Braves before the season ends.

Old Gashouse Spirit Continues Burning in St. Louis Cardinals

By FRED DOWN

The old gashouse spirit still burns in the St. Louis Cardinals even if their pennant hopes have been reduced to a mere flickering hope.

Refusing to give up despite the overwhelming odds against them, the Cardinals fanned their hopes just a bit Wednesday night when they outlasted the pennant-bound Milwaukee Braves, 5-4, in a 12-inning thriller. The victory left the Cardinals still 7½ games "out" but it gave them a couple of straws to grasp at.

—That 7½ - game Milwaukee margin is only one more game tha the Braves led St. Louis when Stan Musial was injured.

—The victory was the Cardinals' ninth in 18 meetings with the Braves. Should they beat the Braves again tonight they just might be within striking distance —with Musial back — when they play Milwaukee a three - game series beginning Sept. 23.

Herm Goes Distance

Herman Wehmeier went the distance for the Cardinals to win his third straight decision and eighth of the season, despite a three-run homer by Del Rice and a solo round-tripper by Ed Mathews.

Don Blasingame finally broke the game open when he launched the 12th inning with a double and stole third. This forced the Braves to issue intentional walks to Al Dark and Joe Cunningham, setting up a play at all bases, but Del Ennis came through with a sacrifice fly that right-fielder Bob Hazle misplayed to bring in the decisive tally.

The third-place Brooklyn Dodgers crushed the Philadelphia Phillies, 12-3, the Pittsburgh Pirates stopped the New York Giants, 2-0, and the Cincinnati Redlegs came back from a 1-0 defeat to whip the Chicago Cubs, 7-2, in the other National League games.

Bosox Whip Yanks

The idle second - place Chicago White Sox moved to within five games of first place when the Boston Red Sox downed the New York Yankees, 7-5, in 11 innings and the Baltimore Orioles beat the Washington Senators, 1-0, in the only American League activity.

The Dodgers scored seven runs in the eighth inning to clinch Don Newcombe's 11th triumph. Gil Hodges, PeeWee Reese, Charley Neal, Carl Furillo and Don Zimmer each had two hits for the Dodgers.

Bob Friend pitched a seven-hitter to give the Pirates a victory that eliminated the Giants from the pennant race. Dick Groat doubled in the first inning and singled in the third to drive in both runs.

Twirls Two-Hitter

Moe Drabowsky's two-hitter and Ernie Banks' 33rd homer gave the Cubs a one-hour and 37 - minute victory—fastest game in the NL in five years — but the Redlegs socked 13 hits in the nightcap as Joe Nuxhall squared his record at 8-9.

Pete Daley, whose two-run single gave the Red Sox a short-lived 5-3 lead in the ninth inning, belted a two-run homer in the 11th as the Yankees suffered their fifth loss in seven games.

Jerry Walker, a 20-yearl-old $20,000 bonus kid from Eying, Okla., pitched a fourhitter for his first big league win for the Orioles. Pinchhitter Joe Ginsberg's sacrifice fly with the bases filled and one out in the 10th produced the winning run.

Phillie Hurler Out Remainder of Season

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — A broken right wrist, suffered in a household fall, today sidelined relief pitcher Bob Miller of the Philadelphia Phillies for the rest of the season.

The Phillies announced that the big right hander suffered the fracture when he slipped and fell in his home Wednesday. Details of the accident were not disclosed.

Sit in on Discussion of Religion

OBERLIN, Ohio (UP)— What happens when theologians from 47 different churches sit down together to discuss their "honest differences" about religion?

To find out, come sit in one of the working sessions of the North American Conference on Faith and Order.

This eight day conference on the campus of Oberlin College is the first of its kind ever held in this country.

It has brought together leaders of major Protestant and orthodox denominations to explore their common bonds of faith and the differences which still stand in the way of creating a single big church.

Split Into Sections

Each morning, after a worship service, the 500 delegates and observers split up into 12 separate sections to discuss specific problems of Christian unity.

Section two has attracted the greatest interest. Its job is to define "areas of consensus and conflict in doctrine."

Section two holds its day-long meetings in a typical green walled college classroom, on the ground floor of an ancient stone building facing the main square of the Oberlin campus. The chairman is Dr. Edward M. Carlson, president of Augustus Adolphus Lutheran College at St. Peter, Minn. He sits behind the professor's desk on a small, raised platform in front of the blackboard.

Catholic Present

The official participants, including such noted theologians as Professor Robert L. Calhoun of Yale Divinity School and Dr. John A. Mackey, president of Princeton Theological Seminary, sit in wide-armed student chairs arranged in a semi-circle about the room.

In the back row, listening intently, but never taking part in the formal discussions, is the Rev. Gustave Weigel, a leading Roman Catholic theologian, who is here as an "unofficial observer."

The session begins with discussion of a long paper written by Calhoun, attempting to express what all the churches believe about Jesus Christ.

It finally becomes clear that in all of the widely-divergent Christian traditions represented in the room, there is no real disagreement about the tremendous affirmation which is the central theme of Calhoun's paper: That Jesus Christ is "truly God and truly man" and the "unique mediator of God's forgiving grace" to sinful man.

Forces Impress

TAIPEI, Formosa (UP) — Gen. Wang (Tiger) Shu-ming, chief of staff of the Nationalist Chinese armed forces, said today he was "greatly impressed" by the progress made by the U.S. armed forces since his last visit to the United States five years ago. Wang returned Wednesday night from a three-week inspection tour of American military installations.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Popp, of R. D., Belle Vernon, have returned home after spending a week on a fishing trip to Erie. Also visiting Erie were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Popp and children.

Letter A Puzzler

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UP) — Wilburn L. Haven justifiably was puzzled when he received a letter from the Bernalillo County Selective Service Board asking him why he had no selective service number. Master Sergeant Haven, father of two children, has been in the army for 23 years.

Edna Marston Class Meets at Corwin Home

Members of the Edna Marston Class of the First Baptist Church met at the home of Mrs. Minty Corwin on Tuesday evening. The women sang "My Jesus I Love Thee" to open the program. Mrs. Ethel Mae Lowe was devotional leader.

She read the scripture and Mrs. James C. Puz offered prayer. The class sang "Precious Lord" to end the devotions.

During the business session a douation of $10 was made to the church renovation fund.

Mrs. Mary Carper of Hill St. will be next hostess with Mrs. Sydney Krepps as devotional leader.

The group is visiting with Mrs. Kate Weaver of Uniontown, a shutin, this afternoon.

The social hour was highlighted by the serving of a covered dish luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Raffelo of Detroit visited for a few days with Mr. and Mrs. John Trozzo and other friends and relatives.

Legion Units Will Hold Joint Installation on Saturday

Plans were completed for the joint installation of officers by Belle Vernon American Legion Post 659 and its Ladies Auxiliary at a post meeting at the home on Monday evening.

Installation ceremonies will be held in the newly remodeled and redecorated meeting room of the post home at 8 o'clock Saturday night. A social time will follow.

Jack Richwine will be installed as post commander and Mrs. Mary Ferrari as auxiliary president along with members of their staffs. They will succeed Commander Andrew Luzanski and President Inez Lehew.

In other meeting action Milan Franceschi reported that there was no August project, due to slower working conditions in the valley and lack of enthusiasm in the membership. The plans for future projects will be discussed by a special committee.

Convention Report

Al Frank reported on the recent state convention at Harrisburg.

Richwine presented a statement concerning the annual carnival and announced that the 1958 carnival will be held July 15 to 20 inclusive.

Roy Sterner informed members of plans for the Veteran's Day observance which will be held in California by the valley groups.

The men voted that the commander would have the responsibility of assigning the duties for the caretaker of the Honor Roll and Legion grounds.

Improvements to the post home and grounds were discussed. It was reported that the machine guns at the Honor Roll had been tampered with, and the men voted to prosecute anyone caught moving this or any other equipment on Legion property.

It was also decided that the grounds would not be used for football playing by the area boys.

Commander Luzanski in closing the session thanked the members for their cooperation for the successful past year.

Weekly awards went to William Venneri, who was present and Al Razzando who was not.

After the meeting the men were shown colored movies of the state convention taken by delegate, Past Commander William Venneri.

Lynnwood Club At Davis Home

Mrs. Margaret Davis of Lynnwood was hostess to the members of the Lynnwood Tuesday Evening Club at her home.

Cards were the diversion and the awards for high score were won by Mrs. Myrtle Gaul, Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Zelinda Sabatini.

Luncheon was served, and the next meeting was planned for the home of Viva Lovas.

Meeting Times Announced for School Boards

John E. Kuhn, secretary of the Bellmarette Joint School District, today announced the time of all regular meetings of the school boards in the district.

The listings are as follows: Belle Vernon School Board, the first Wednesday of each month at 7:45 p.m. in the Vernon Junior High School; Bellmarette Joint School Board, the second Tuesday of each month at the Bellmar High School Library at 8 p.m.; the Fayette City School Board, the last Monday of each month in the Fayette City Elementary School at 7:30 p.m.; the Washington Township School Board, the last Monday of each month at the Marion School; the North Belle Vernon School Board, the second Thursday of each month at the Bellmar High School Library.

Kuhn added that in case of a special meeting or the necessity to change the regular times of the meetings a notice will be given to the public.

He also announced that the Municipal Authority of the Borough of Belle Vernon meets the third Thursday of the month at 7:30 p. m. in the authority office at 102 Main St.

Bert Smiths Honor Guests on 40th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. George Usher of Water St. entertained at their home on Sunday at a dinner party marking the 40th anniversary of Mrs. Usher's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Smith of Speer St.

Attending along with the guests of honor, the host and hostess and their children were Mrs. Evelyn Komlos, another daughter of the Smiths, Mrs. Belle Gallow of Dravosburg, a sister of Mrs. Smith and Totten Kyle, grandson of the honored couple.

Centering the table was a large anniversary cake baked by Mrs. Gallow's daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Price of Dravosburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith received greetings and gifts on the occasion. They are the parents of five children, a son, James and four daughters, Mrs. Komlos, Mrs. Usher, Mrs. Edward Sulek of California and Mrs. Robert Kyle of Belle Vernon. Mr. Smith was employed as a mail carrier at the Belle Vernon Post Office and is now retired.

In the evening the group went to the Sulek home in California to visit Mr. and Mrs. Sulek and their children. Their infant daughter, who was a patient in the Childrens Hospital, Pittsburgh, returned home that day.

Ladies Bowling League Meets; Elects Officers

St. Sebastian Ladies Bowling League held a meeting Tuesday evening at Monesen City Park to reorganize for the 1957-58 year. A wiener roast preceded the meeting.

Mrs. Ann Husovitz, new president, conducted the business session. Teams were chosen and they will be captained by Leona Kuhn, Ida Picchiarini, Dena Zanardelli, Betty Cope, Fran Halkowitz, Nell Valdiserri, Emma Vanucci and Rita Susick.

Leona Kuhn was appointed chairman for the Halloween party and Ruth Schollaert will be chairman of the Christmas party. Each will name her own committee.

The guest prize was won by Louise Tollari.

In addition to Mrs. Husovitz other officers include Dena Zanardelli, vice president; Fran Halkowitz, treasurer and Enice Sousae, scorekeeper.

Arrangements for the wiener roast were in charge of the officers along with Mafalda Blevins, Ida Picchiarini, Blanche Perez, Jennie Zerone, Jean Komlos, Florence Petras and Ethel Dunkerly.

Loretta Palfrey and Andrea Borsotta of Belle Vernon, Frances Sofran of Smithton and Joan Beck of Monessen spent the week end and holiday in New York City. The girls made the trip by plane, and visited many points of interest including the Statue of Liberty. They also visited the U. S. Military Academy at West Point. They saw the stage play "No Time for Sergeants" and the revue at Radio City Music Hall.

Thomas McCall, who was a patient in the Monongahela Memorial Hospital, has returned to his home in Belle Vernon.

Loyal Women's Class in Corn, Wiener Roast

The members of the Loyal Women's Class of the First Christian Church held a corn and wiener roast in the church social rooms on Tuesday evening.

After the 6 o'clock meal there was a devotional period conducted by Mrs. Bertha MacDonald. Her subject was "The Master's Hand" and the study was from the book of Mark. She concluded with prayer.

Mrs. John Cadman conducted the business session during which cards were sent to ill members.

The next meeting was planned for the home of Mrs. Jennie Bowen of Charleroi with Mrs. MacDonald as co-hostess. Mrs. Coral Mills will be devotional leader.

Women of Moose Meets at Hall; Reports Are Heard

The women of the Moose, Belle Vernon Chapter 1243, met at the Moose Hall on Tuesday evening. Senior Regent Thelma Smock was in charge. The group was led in prayer by Chaplain Edith Thot.

The pledge was led by Junior Regent Alice Maylen.

Reports were given on previous activities by acting recorder, Naomi Brizzi, in absence of Marge Lambert due to the death of her father.

Thank you cards were read from Mrs. Mary Knaus and Mrs. Minnie Crum.

Acting Treasurer Louise Nichols gave the financial statement. Routine business was discussed, and many invitations were read from other chapters inviting Belle Vernon to attend activities. On Sept. 22, the chapter will do the initiation for Star Recorder day being held by the Monongahela chapter.

A moving picture on cancer was shown before the meeting by Bill Muir assisted by Mrs. Robert Whitelaw, co-chairman of the American Cancer Society in this area.

A decorated birthday table was arranged with a candle centerpiece and was set by Rose Ambrose. Celebrating birthdays were Edith Tho, Thea Dominico, Dorothy Protin and Ann Escareno. Each cover was marked with a miniature birthday cake and a gift handkerchief presented by the chapter.

The group sang "Happy Birthday" to the honored guests..

Chairman for the evening was Rose Ambrose. She was assisted by Mary Bukoski, Edith Thot and Elizabeth Marciniak.

The special prize was won by Thea Dominico and the guest prize by Ann Guth.

The next meeting was set for Sept. 17 at 7 o'clock.

Plays Leading Role In Summer Theatre

Ed Kostelac of Fairhope will be playing one of the leading roles in "Time Limit", when the 1957 summer theatre season ends next week at Little Lake Theatre located at Canonsburg Dam.

The production opens next Monday evening and Kostelac will be seen in the role of an army sergeant. He has been active at Little Lake for several seasons and played various roles this season.

How to buy "vitamins"

Door-to-door peddlers are around now, selling vitamin preparations and nutritional supplements. The talk is mighty convincing. But, remember, talk won't do a thing for you. There's only one way to be sure of what vitamin you need if any are needed at all. That is to see your family physician. He and he alone is qualified to prescribe for you. Always buy vitamins or nutritional supplements from a registered pharmacist. Then you'll know what you're getting—and you'll get your money's worth.

Buyers Put on Brakes

By UNITED PRESS

The American consumer has beaten President Eisenhower to the punch in his appeal for discriminate buying to help combat inflation.

That was the opinion today of merchants in all parts of the nation contacted in a United Press survey.

The President, in a news conference Tuesday, urged the public to spend more carefully and try to save money as a safeguard against greater inflation.

But big city store managers and owners were almost unanimous in their opinion that buyers already are more cautious in their spending habits.

Spend On Recreation

They reported only a moderate increase in sales of luxury items, largely among the so-called middle-middle and upper-middle classes who are spending more on recreation goods like hi-fi sets and marine equipment.

Then, too, some merchants pointed out there's a queston of semantics involved—what's a luxury item?

A spokesman for Kaufmann's department store in Pittsburgh recalled that not too many years ago women regarded an automatic washer and dryer as a longed-for luxury. Today, many women regard these items as essentials.

At Denver, Joseph Ross, manager of Daniels & Fisher department store, said he was "not qualified" to determine whether customers were buying luxuries or essentials.

"Confounded" By Statement

"A $49 dress is a necessity to one customer, but a luxury to another," he said.

Ross added he was "confounded" by the President's statement. He said the "wheels of American economy" are geared to retail sales.

Along a similar vein, A. W. Zelomek, president of the International Statistical Bureau, said in New York that a slowdown in customer spending could create economic trouble.

Zelomek blamed much of the current inflation on the increased costs of services, like medical care and travel, rather than on indiscriminate buying.

Gem Bowling League Meeting

The Gem Bowling League held a meeting last Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rieser to make plans for the new season, which will begin Wednesday evening, Sept. 11.

Mrs. Thelma Medsger will serve as secretary-treasurer for the group. Captains are as follows: Mrs. Isabel Striker, opals; Mrs Marianne Brinker, diamonds; Gladys Urinsco, rubies; and Ruth Goehring, emeralds.

Committees were appointed for the Christmas party and the annual spring banquet.

Lunch was served to the twelve members present by Mrs. Rieser.

Bible Class at Troup Home Here Tomorrow

Members of the Charlotte Fleming Bible Class of the First Presbyterian Church will be entertained by Mrs. Clarence Troup, chairman of the hostess committee at her home on Smithdale Road tomorrow evening.

The meeting will be called to order by the president, Mrs. Frank Koshearm, who will be in charge of the business session.

Opening devotions will be led by Mrs. William R. Sampson and Mrs. S. B. Markle. A highlight of the program will be a report of recent conferences related by Miss Donna Mae Evans, who was a delegate to the National Westminster Conference at Grinell, Iowa, and the Presbyterian camps at Bethany, West Virginia and Michaux, Pa.

Mrs. Troup will have as her aides, Mrs. J. C. Beattie, Mrs. Ella Dove, Mrs. C. P. Markle and Mrs. Robert H. Stevenson.

This will be the first meeting of the fall and winter activities and a good attendance is desired.

The Berean Sunday School Class of the First Methodist Church met at the church on Tuesday evening. Mrs. Anna Wisser was in charge of the devotions. Mrs. Anna VanKirk and Mrs. Claude Mitchell were the hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Samios and daughter Karen Ann of Vine St. visited in Manor over Labor Day.

HERE'S WHY THE REVOLVING AGITATOR LAUNDROMAT® IS BEST!

Washes Cleaner! Laundromat has no center-post. Clothes go inside Revolving Agitator which lifts and plunges them 50 times a minute; washes all the clothes constantly. THE SAND TEST PROVES IT!

Rinses Better! Revolving Agitator lifts clothes while dirty wash water and soil drain away from them, never through them. Center-post agitator machines strain it all back through the clothes. THE SAND TEST PROVES IT!

Cleans Itself! Because of its patented design the Laundromat is entirely self-cleaning. Cleans clothes and cleans itself automatically. All soil, sand, lint and scum go down the drain. THE SAND TEST PROVES IT!

Corn Meal Is Used in Many Favorite Foods

Not everyone realizes how much that native American grain, corn, contributed to the development of the New World. The pounded dry kernels brought as gifts by the Indians may be credited with saving the new colony from starvation.

Corn was a new cereal to the settlers, and they missed the wheaten bread to which they had been accustomed. Even after wheat had been brought from abroad, there was continued use of the corn. For some time "English bread" was considered a luxury. The dough was mixed without any leavening at first and baked in the ashes or sometimes on a hoe. For this reason, cornbread is still known as "hoecake" in some sections of the country.

While corn meal is not greatly used in most households, many people like it as an ingredient in griddlecakes, muffins or old-fashioned pone. Once in a while, some will make a mush by cooking the grain with water and serve it as a hot cereal with cream and sugar. Some also like it fried, after molding it into a loaf that can be cut in even pieces.

Combined with wheat flour, corn meal gives an interesting flavor and texture to a pastry crust that is particularly appropriate as a foundation for a meat pie.

SAVORY HAM PIE

Filling:
- 1½ cups cooked green beans
- 2 cups cubed cooked ham
- 2-3 cup cream of chicken soup
- 2 tablespoons milk
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Mix all indredients thoroughly.

Pastry:
- 1 cup sifted flour
- 2-3 cup corn meal
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup grated sharp cheese
- 1-3 cup shortening
- 5 to 7 tablespoons cold water

Sift together flour, corn meal and salt into bowl. Blend in grated cheese. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add water gradually, mixing until pastry will just hold together. Form into a ball and let stand 5 minutes. Roll out ½ pastry to fit a 9-inch pie pan. Fill with ham filling. Roll out remaining half of pastry, and cut slits in several places. Fit over ham filling, seal edges and flute. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) about 20 minutes. Serve with horseradish sauce made by combining ½ cup heavy cream, whipped, with 2 teaspoons horseradish.

GNOCCHI

Cook corn meal mush according to directions on package. Place in bread pan and chill until firm. Cut in 1-inch squares and arrange in casserole with ¼ pound sliced cheese. Add 1 cup milk. Cover and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 20 minutes. Uncover and continue baking until lightly brown.

YOUR FOOD PROBLEM

By Edith M. Barber

SHRIMPBURGERS provide a new and unusual method of serving shrimp, which is plentiful and a favorite food among American people at the present time. A full course fish dinner is often chosen by a hostess as "company fare" since many of the recipes are unknown to many, and offer a complete and delightful surprise.

Fruit or Juice Is Nourishing

Fruit juice for breakfast. Most people have acquired the habit of starting the day with a glass of chilled juice. This has resulted in the false conception that fruit in juice form has a higher nutritive value than its original source.

Of course, it makes no difference whether one drinks or eats the fruits that are served in either way. All fruits contribute a certain amount of minerals and vitamins. And using a citrus or tomato juice at least once a day assures having plenty of vitamin C.

Melons, peaches, pears, and blueberries are all plentiful and folks like to use them when they are at their seasonable best. If one puts tomatoes in raw or cooked form on the menu for another meal, they can indulge as much as they like in those tempting fruits that are usually less expensive just now than at any other time of the year.

People seldom cook peaches or pears, but they may like to saute the former for an interesting dessert. There have been several requests for this recipe.

FRUIT WITH SHERBET

Combine blueberries with sliced chilled peaches. Sprinkle with sugar and mix well. Serve in sherbet glasses and top with lemon or raspberry sherbet. Any other combination of fresh fruits may be served in the same fashion, either as a first course or as a dessert.

FRIED FRESH PEACHES
- 6 peaches
- 2 tablespoons butter
- ½ cup sugar

Cut peaches in halves, remove stones, but do not peel. Melt butter and place peaches in pan with cut side down. Cook over low heat until tender, basting with butter. Turn and cook on other side for a few minutes, adding more butter as needed. Add sugar and cook until sugar dissolves. Serve as meat accompaniment or as dessert. Yield: 6 servings.

SMOTHERED ONION RINGS

Peel and cut large sweet onions in slices of medium thickness. Separate into rings and saute in in beef drippings or butter until lightly brown. Stir occasionally during cooking. Or cook onion rings around roast beef or oven-cooked broilers during last 15 minutes of roasting.

Fall Fish Supplies Are Plentiful and Appetizing

Next week is going to be promoted as a "Fish Parade." Perhaps you are as surprised as I was to find that supplies are particularly plentiful in the early fall. Of course, since the development of fast freezing, fish is never unseasonable.

Edith Barber

Recently I had a rich and rare gift of those tiny bay scallops that — in my opinion — score just about 100 per cent as a gourmet food. These are never so plentiful as the sea scallops which are larger and of good flavor and texture but not equal to the smaller shell fish. By the way, did you know that only a small portion of either type of scallop is used? I am sure you have seen scallop shells on the beach and they are always much larger than the edible portion found in the markets.

Fortunately, one of the most plentiful shellfish is also the most popular. Shrimp may be called America's most popular shellfish. Almost everyone likes it, and you have probably noted as I have that it is the first choice as an appetizer and as a salad.

Shrimpburgers, when seen on a menu, almost compete with the popular hamburger. For these, the frozen cooked shrimp or the canned shrimp may be used. The former will give a more attractive service, as some of them may be allowed to remain whole and used for garnishing. In this case, the shrimpburgers will be placed on a half of a toasted hamburger bun.

SHRIMPBURGERS
- 1 package (12 ounces) frozen, peeled and deveined cooked shrimp
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 3 tablespoons flour
- ¾ cup milk
- 1 cup cooked rice
- ½ cup grated cheese
- 2 tablespoons grated onion
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- Dash of cayenne
- ½ teaspoon curry powder
- Fine bread crumbs

Thaw shrimp. Reserve 6 for garnishing. Cut remainder into small pieces. Melt butter or margarine and stir in flour. Gradually add milk, stirring constantly over moderate heat until thick. Combine with remaining ingredients. (If there is time, chill mixture for easier handling.) Shape into patties, and roll in fine bread crumbs. Fry on both sides in abou ½-inch hot fat. Serve on toasted halves of hamburger buns with a relish or chutney. Yield: 6 servings.

SAUTEED SCALLOPS
- 1 pound scallops
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon tarragon vinegar
- 1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
- 1 tablespoon paprika
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup butter or margarine

Rinse scallops. Combine lemon juice and vinegar. Mix bread crumbs, paprika, pepper and salt. Dip scallops in lemon juice, then coat with bread crumb mixture. Melt butter or margarine in skillet and saute scallops in hot butter or margarine about 2 minutes, turning once to brown on both sides. Serve immediately with chopped parsley and chives. Yield 4 servings.

BEETS AND GREENS

When beets are very young and tender, beets and tops may be cooked together. Beet tops in good condition may be washed thoroughly and cooked separately in a small amount of salted water in a tightly covered utensil until tender. Drain, chop and dress.

Tasty Recipes

VICHYSSOISE
- 6 leeks
- 1-3 cup butter
- 2 cups thinly sliced potatoes
- 4 cups chicken stock
- Salt
- Pepper
- 1 cup cream

Remove stem ends and green tops of leeks, leaving about 2 inches above the white portion, and slice. Melt butter in saucepan, add leeks, and saute 5 minutes. Add potatoes and chicken stock, and cook over medium heat until potatoes are tender. Force leeks, potatoes, and liquid through a sieve, and combine with cream. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Reheat if to be served hot, and serve garnished with minced parsley. Chill if to be served cold. Yield: 6 servings.

VARIATIONS

1. Use 2 medium-sized sweet onions instead of the leeks.
2. Substitute 1 cup diced carrots for an equal amount of potatoes and cook with potatoes.

Is Outstanding Student Nurse

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Winnie Jo Shumaker, Oil City, Pa., has been named the outstanding student nurse in the Pittsburgh area in a contest with candidates from 33 hospitals.

Miss Shumaker, who is studying at Presbyterian Hospital, now will compete for a state title against nurses from six other regions of the Pennsylvania Student Nurse Assn. at the organization's annual convention in Pittsburgh in October.

Last night's contest was held at the Pittsburgh Hospital auditorium with judges making their selection on the basis of appearance, poise, training and other qualifications.

Industry Helping to Cut Farm Surpluses

NEW YORK (UP) — Private industry is working hand-in-glove with the government in trying to whittle down the $8 billion agricultural surplus.

Industry is hoping to bring supply and demand back into balance. The government has a stake just in trying to reduce some of the storage costs that already amount to about $1 million daily.

Both are banking to a large extent on disposal of surplus products abroad.

Disposal activities have been carried out through dollar sales, barter, donations and through sales for foreign currencies.

Exporters and representatives from private trade and agricultural groups offer advice on how to implement the program without upsetting normal trade relationships and at the same time are out drumming up foreign business for American commodities.

"The impact of all these private enterprises is very great," according to Clarence Francis, retired chairman of General Foods Corp. who is chairman of an interagency policy committee on surplus problems.

'Prune Peddler'

Francis, who calls himself a "retired prune peddler," says surplus disposal is "the biggest sales job in the world with the biggest selling organization behind it."

Another food industry leader, Paul Sayres, head of one of the nation's largest food brokerage organizations, says he plans to set up a series of committees to iron out kinks in foreign distribution systems.

"Any good salesman sees to it that his client makes the most effective use of the purchased item" Sayres says. "It is our obligation . . .to help them (foreign countries) achieve the maximum benefits from the foodstuffs we provide them."

Sayres leaves later this month to study food distribution in India.

Machinery for surplus food disposal was set up by Congress in July 1954 under public law 480 which provides for the sale of surpluses in return for foreign currency and makes liberal use of the currency thus obtained.

Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson says that under the law, which was recently extended by Congress, about 100 agreements have been negotiated with foreign countries.

Spurred by agreements made under the law, U.S. agricultural exports in the 1956-57 fiscal year climbed to an all-time high of $4,700,000,000 or more than one-third greater than in the previous fiscal year.

Industrial State Activity Drops During July

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower called inflation the most pressing domestic problem today and urged Americans to help combat it by careful, selective buying.

Eisenhower emphasized at his news conference that he was not advocating a buyers' strike.

But he said reckless buying adds fuel to the flames of inflation and all Americans must do their part in solving the problem.

The President said flatly that the government is not considering any mandatory controls on the economy— in other words, price controls and similar devices.

But he added, the government will do all it can by other methods to combat rising prices.

This will be done through persuasion, he said, through direct actions by the Treasury and the Federal Reserve Board, and other government agencies.

The President said, in response to a question, that he must admit sorrowfully that inflation is the major internal problem facing the country. He added that it is a problem requiring help from everybody.

Stressing that he was not advocating a buyers' strike, he said all Americans should do their part by selective and careful buying.

The fact that people are prosperous, he said, should not lead them into reckless buying. This only adds fuel to the inflationary fires, he said.

Clark to Make Strenuous Tour Of the State

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — Joseph S. Clark, Pennsylvania's junior U. S. Senator, said today he plans a strenuous month tour of the state during the next two months.

Clark said the purpose of his tour was three-fold: to check on conditions in the various counties; get information for the next session of Congress and help, if he can, Democratic candidates for local offices who helped him in the counties last year.

Clark defeated former senator James H. Duff by more than 17,000 votes, despite the landslide in the state for President Eisenhower during last year's election.

His first speaking date is in Philadelphia Sept. 14. Following out-of-state engagements, he will return to be the principal speaker at the Schuylkill County Democrats picnic at Pottsville.

The week of October 7 he will start on a wide tour of counties throughout the state, starting with speeches in Williamsport and Lock Haven.

Cost of Running State Doubles

HARRISBURG (UP)—The State Chamber of Commerce reported today the cost of Pennsylvania's government has doubled in the last 10 years.

The chamber said in its fiscal review of 1957 legislation that although the lawmakers gave Gov. George M. Leader about 82-million dollars less than he asked for, the General Fund appropriations for the next two years went up 135 million dollars over the previous 1955-57 period.

New Bureau to Help Teachers With Answers

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Public Instruction Department has opened a new bureau to help Pennsylvania's teachers "stumped" for answers about courses they teach.

The department formed a bureau of educational field services under Paul Glatzert, former social studies coordinator for the Erie schools. The bureau will advise teachers and school administrators about the modern way to teach their subjects and answer questions.

"The bureau will be a clearing house for the latest information about the courses of study and teaching techniques being used in our schools," Glatzert said. "We have learned that a number of teachers lack essential knowledge of the things they teach, especially in elementary arithmetic and Pennsylvania history. "Part of our job will be to draw up course outlines and reading lists which we will recommend to teachers who feel they need to be brought up to date."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

1 Death Notice

ZUBRITSKY Sr. — Charles, 74, 460 Braddock Ave., Monessen, died Sept. 3, at 8 a. m. at his home. Surviving are his wife, Mary; the following children: John, Charles Jr., Melvin, Mrs. Irene Skoczlas, all of Monessen; Michael, at home; Mrs. Kathryn Fordanich, Belle Vernon, R. D. and Alex of Cleveland, Ohio; seven grandchildren and a brother, George of Monessen. Friends are being received at the Yoney Funeral Home, Schoonmaker Ave., from 1 to 5 and 7 to 10 p. m. Brief funeral services will be held from the funeral home Friday, Sept. 6, at 9 a. m., with additional rites to follow from the St. Nicholas Ukrainian Orthodox Church. The Rev. Michael Yarosh will officiate. Interment will be in Grandview Cemetery. Stephen D. Yoney, funeral director.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear wife, mother and grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Lhota, who died six years ago today, September 5, 1951.
You are not forgotten loved one,
Nor will you ever be
As long as life and memory last
We shall remember thee.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
As time goes on we miss you more,
Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place.
Sadly missed by Husband, Albert, Children and Grandchildren.

In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, Michael Stetsko, Sr., who died three years ago today, September 5, 1954.
Memories are treasures no one can steal,
Death leaves a heartache no one can heal;
Loved dearly in life and living yet
In the hearts of the ones that will never forget.
Sadly missed by Wife, Children and Grandchildren

In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, Harry McNaughton who died one year ago today, September 5, 1956.
The rolling stream of life rolls on,
And still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile.
Of the one who once sat there.
It is lonesome here without you,
And sad the weary way,
For life is not the same to us
Since you were called away
Sadly missed by Wife and Family.

In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, Archie Berlin, who died one year ago today, September 5, 1956.
Loving memories never die
As years roll on, and days pass by.
Deep in our hearts a memory is kept
Of one we loved and will never forget.
A grief, a tear, a thought sincere,
How often we wish that you were here.
Sadly missed by Wife, Daughters, Sons-in-law and Grandchildren.

West Accuses Reds of Playing Politics in U. N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—Western diplomats privately accused the Russians today of playing U.N. politics by holding up Security Council approval of the re-election of Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold.

The council was to have met today but the Soviets requested an indefinite postponement earlier this week, explaining only that they were not ready to consider the question.

Western sources said the Russian move was connected with the special General Assembly debate on Hungary opening Tuesday. These sources accused Russia of stalling on the Hammarskjold re-election to enhance its bargaining position during the assembly session.

Hammarskjold's first five-year term expires next April 10. To be re-elected he first would have to be approved by the Security Council and then voted in by secret ballot in the General Assembly. The regular assembly opens Sept. 17 and the West hoped to have Security Council approval by then.

The Security Council was summoned to meet Friday for an emergency session on a Jordanian complaint on Israel's activities in a "no-mans-land" sector south of Jerusalem.

Officials Come Clean

LONDON (UP) — Sensitive-nosed London officials have put out a new guide for the city's 10,000 college freshmen. The guide points out when, where and how much it costs to bathe if the student happens to live in one of London's 510,000 bathtubless houses.

Soil Bank Program For Winter Wheat

Westmoreland County Farm Agent Joseph S. Thurston announced today that the Soil Bank's 1958 acreage reserve program will be available for winter wheat to be seeded this fall.

Thurston said all farmers who wish to take part in the program by reducing their wheat acreage are requested to sign agreements at the county farm office in Greensburg before Oct. 4.

Each farm taking part will have a Soil Bank base established. This base is determined on the average acreage devoted to Soil bank crops during the last two years.

Base crops will include corn, wheat, seed grasses, oilseeds, cowpeas, potatoes, commercial vegetables, field and canning peas and beans.

When a farm has a base established under the conservation reserve program, that base will be used. Where a base has not been established each producer will be responsible for furnishing the County ASC committee with the production history and other information needed to establish a Soil Bank base before an agreement may be signed. This information must be provided at least 15 days before the end of the sign-up period on October 4.

Thurston said those who earn payments under the 1958 program must reduce their wheat acreage below the farm's wheat allotment, must comply with any other allotments set for crops on their farm, and must not harvest more total acreage than permitted.

Generally, this is the Soil Bank base less the number of acres put in the Soil Bank. The permitted acreage establishes a limit on harvested crops on the farm, and is intended to prevent shifts from a surplus crop to another crop, which only contributes to over-all surpluses.

Payments on the land placed in reserve will be based on the state average of $27 per acre, but will vary according to the relative productivity of the land reserved. Individual farm per-acre rates will be available to those participating before the agreement is signed.

Note of Humor

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP)—A note of humor evolved from Wednesday's tense integration crisis when National Guardsmen surrounding Central High School asked a small boy why he was afraid to come to school. His reason: "Latin."

Drug to Combat Allergy

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Medical science has developed countless drugs to protect you from diseases. And now, researchers are coming out with a new potion to protect you from a drug.

During the course of this year, about one out of every three persons in the nation will have been given penicillin therapy in one form or another. That's about 60,000,000 persons.

Of this huge slice of our population, from 0.5 to 5 per cent will develop allergic or other reactions to this wonder drug.

The exact nature and severity of these reactions, of course, depend upon many things: the type and amount of penicillin administered, the method of administration and certain other considerations.

Let's say that only one per cent of those treated have a reaction. That's some 600,000 persons who will suffer annoying rashes, severe shock or, in some extreme cases, even death.

So medical men have developed "penicillinase" to combat the adverse effects of penicillin.

Although we are not sure, we believe that the chemical manner of its action is in penicillinase hydrolysing penicillin to penicilloic acid, which is nonallergenc.

At any rate, it appears that circulating penicillinase reduces all demonstrable penicillin blood levels to zero and it does so for prolonged periods of time. This, in effect, renders the penicillin nonallergic.

Tests conducted at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station near Chicago produced dramatic relief from itching and swelling in from a few hours up to 24 hours. Complete relief was reported in many cases after 24 to 72 hours.

Penicillinase is expected to be available sometime late this year

In Hollywood—

Raymond Massey to Play Favorite Role

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Sparc, saturnine Raymond Massey turns his acting talent once again to the role he plays best — Abraham Lincoln.

Massey hits the road Sept. 23 in "The Rivalry" — a play based on the Lincoln debates with Stephen Douglas. The tour starts in Vancouver, B.C., and will touch 74 cities in this country and Canada

How does the loose - limbed actor feel about playing Lincoln again?

"I will continue to portray Mr. Lincoln even though the audience be but ten people," he exclaimed. "I am happy and proud that the public has accepted me as this man of the ages.

"I was horrified by a report not long ago that I was sick and tired of the Lincoln association with my career.

Name A Title

"Identification with the part is an accolade. It's like being given a title. You'd be surprised how few actors are identified with any single role.

"Actors have thought it bad for them to be associated with one part. My interpretation is I'm not the man Lincoln 'killed,' careerwise. Other roles are offered to me regularly."

Massey, who celebrated his 61st birthday this week, says he refuses to play the great president in stories of Lincoln's youth.

"I've been trying to talk my good friend Gregory Peck into playing Lincoln roles. He would do a great job. The young Lincoln belongs to younger actors. As it is, I'm stretching a point playing him at all anymore. President Lincoln was assassinated when he was only 56."

Canadian By Birth

A Canadian by birth, but now a U.S. citizen, Massey began portraying Lincoln in the 1938 Broadway version of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois." He played the title role more than a thousand times.

Since then there have been ten more Lincoln portrayals by the star in movies, television and theater.

Supporting Massey in the new production are Brian Donlevy, who plays Douglas, and Agnes Moorehead as Mrs. Douglas.

"Only one thing plagues me about playing Lincoln," Massey concluded. "I am forced to listen to the same macabre jokes year in and year out. It's really quite annoying."

TV NOTES

NEW YORK (UP) — In addition to its five-afternoons-a-week deal, the veteran "Beat the Clock" of CBS will remain a night show, moving to 6-6:30 p. m. Sundays beginning Oct. 6.

"Playhouse 90" has a new script by Tad Mosel for its use this fall. "The Playroom" is the title of the drama which will come live from Hollywood. Family conflict plot after a woman has been selected "mother of the year."

Singer Tony Bennett will be a guest star on the first "Big Record" program for CBS Sept. 18.

World of Television—

Perennial Summer TV Show

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP) —There is a gag currently making the rounds about a new TV set so powerful it can pull in "Pantomine Quiz" in the winter.

Mike Stokey, packager and emcee of the show that has been pinch - hitting almost as many summers as Enos Slaughter, isn't sure whether he's flattered or annoyed by the crack.

"I suppose it's a pretty good sign that after 10 years as the perennial summer replacement, people are talking about us," said Stokey today. "Still, it's a terribly frustrating thing to have a show like this. Just when we start getting viewers, off we go."

Back In Hibernation

For the past 10 summers, Stokey and his TV brainchild, "Pantomime Quiz," have dropped into the TV schedule with awe - inspiring regularity. The show, a variation of the parlor game, charades, has gambled on all three major networks and the old DuMont web.

Friday night, Stokey and the show, currently roistering on CBS-TV, take their final outing of the season and go into hibernation again.

"Why aren't we on in the winter? Well, I wish I had the answer," moaned Stokey. "Right now, we're drawing the highest mail count in our history—15,000 letters a week. And the first Nielsen Rating gave us a 17.8—and you know how high that is for a summer rating.

"The reason may be that the networks don't make anything on the show. They try to sell their own packages first to advertisers. Or else they try to sell high-budgeted shows to sponsors — shows that call for big sets that the networks can build and make money on, shows that call for lots of camera rehearsal, another item the networks can make money on.

Small Budget Show

"The budget of 'Pantomime Quiz' is only $9,500. We have no elaborate sets and no camera rehearsal. The networks just don't stand to make much money with our show—so off we go when the Fall comes."

Stokey, 38, and a product of Shreveport, La., will take a one-month trip to Europe with his wife when "Pantomime Quiz" folds.

Poetry Course for Credit

"Twentieth-Century Poetry," a three credit telecourse, will be offered over Channel 13 by the State Teachers College, Indiana, on Wednesday evenings, 6:45 to 7:30 o'clock, beginning Sept. 11.

This course, the third of a series to be presented by the college on WQED, is designed as an approach to the most familiar of the modern poets (Robert Frost, Carl Sandburg, Edna St. Vincent Millay, Emily Dickinson, etc.) both American and British; and appreciation of poetry is primarily the course objective. Also stressed (in the interest of the teacher) will be the various approaches that may be made in the teaching of poetry. "Twentieth-Century Poetry" may be taken for credit as a professional course in methods of teaching or as a course in English.

Dr. Betts, a native of Clearfield, is a graduate of Dickinson College and holds the master of arts and doctor of philosophy degrees from the Pennsylvania State University. He has taken graduate work at the University of Minnesota. He is a member of Phi Kappa Phi, national honorary society; the Modern Language Association, and the American Association of University Professors.

He has served as secretary of the Anglo-German Literary Relations group of the Modern Language Association and will be serving as chairman of the same group through 1958. Dr. Betts is assistant editor of a new series of books which are studies in comparative literature, and also is the author of two other scholarly studies.

Presently he has in preparation a book on American literature to be published in the spring of 1958.

Persons interested in the college course for credit which will be presented on WQED are asked to get in touch with Mrs. Margaret L. Beck, television coordinator, State Teachers College, Indiana, Pa.

Psychiatrist Says Doctors Should Stop 'Rating' Hospital Patients

NEW YORK (UP) —A psychiatric investigator has found that if doctors and nurses would stop making "Hooper ratings" of hospital patients, they'd get many of them well and out of the hospital faster.

Dr. Bernard C. Mayer was called to a surgical ward because a woman patient had developed after a minor, commonplace operation a complication which was so very off-beat the surgeons were at a loss to explain it.

So they sent for psychiatrist Mayer. He found she considered herself "a virtually forgotten patient." When senior doctors and their students made the daily ward rounds, "the impressive assemblage" lingered long around the beds of really serious, difficult surgical cases.

Develop Complex

But they hardly paused at her bed. She knew she was surgically unimportant — even a bore. Being human, she developed the odd complication which attracted interested attention from the doctors and nurses—and also prolonged her illness and her stay in the hospital.

"This case touches on the general matter of attitudes of medical personnel toward patients, especially ward patients, a subject that receives altogether too little attention both in medical teaching and in the non - psychoanalyttic literature," Mayer said in a report to the Medical Society of the state of New York.

"I refer to those inevitable likes and dislikes which doctors and nurses experience toward different patients: The preference felt toward the young versus the old, the pretty versus the homely, the 'sweet' versus the demanding, the cheerful versus the depressed, the rare 'museum piece' versus the hernia repair, the success versus the failure, and more particularly the curable versus the incurable.

"In short patients too have 'Hooper ratings.'". And doctors and nurses as well as patients have unconscious segments of mind which "contribute to prejudices for or against their patients." The attitudes sparked by these unconscious mental processes appear in "their most unabashed guise in that deplorable and vulgar custom of addressing elderly women as 'mama,' thin, old men as 'pop,' shy, adolescent girls as 'sister,' and an odd assortment of other patients, despite a brief acquaintanceship, by their first names."

He granted, of course, that ward patients are "unequally ill" and, therefore, the more seriously ill require more time and attention. Nevertheless, he said, all hospital patients, whether or not seriously ill, "tend to display regressive childlike attitudes, thoughts, and behavior, and there is often a marked restriction of interest outside the self, resulting in a tubular concentration on the physical self and especially on the disease site."

So when doctors and nurses give the impression that this "object of concentrated attention is not especially interesting to those charged with its care and cure," they are 'asking for trouble.'

The patient may feel a sharp sense of rejection, a staggering blow to his self-esteem, and this leads to "conscious and unconscious efforts to enlist greater interest, further regression, prolongation of invalidism, and hence protracted convalescence."

Public Hearings Sept. 12 by Aging Committee

Public hearings will be held in Uniontown on Sept. 12 by the Governor's Committee on the Aging to discuss problems affecting the state's senior citizens.

The Uniontown hearings have been set up to study the problem in Westmoreland, Washington, Greene and Fayette Counties.

Any group wishing to offer testimony is invited to do so. However an application should first be made with the Committee at Room 322, Health and Welfare Building, Harrisburg.

The Governor's Committee, headed by Rev. William T. Swaim, Jr., plans to conduct hearings at eleven sites throughout the state.

The 1956 census revealed that 1,338,993 persons in Pennsylvania are 60 years of age or older. By 1960, it is estimated that almost 20 per cent of the state's population will be 65 or over.

His Number's Up

KNOXVILLE, Tenn (UP) — Madison Smith's number was up. Madison was arrested for the 46th time after being caught with dice that rolled only 7s and 11s.

Survey Expecting Sales to Rise

NEW YORK (UP) — A sampling of opinion of business executives reveals that a majority expects sales and earnings for the second half to rise or hold steady.

This was brought out in a survey made by Sidney B. Lurie, research expert for Josephthal & Co. of 125 companies.

Of these 63 per cent looked for higher sales and 57 per cent for higher earnings in the second half. Ten per cent looked for lower sales and 27 per cent thought sales would be unchanged. Twenty six looked for lower profits and 17 per cent held that the profit figure would be unchanged.

Second half capital expenditures centered on reductions with 47 per cent looking for that trend while 24 per cent said they would be higher and 29 per cent, unchanged.

Of the group 59 per cent said they were more concerned with profit margins in relation to the first six months while 10 per cent were less concerned and 31 per cent reported no change.

Lurie said best comparisons apparently will be recorded by the container, department store, drug, electrical equipment, office equipment, petroleum, television and tobacco industries.

He finds the steel industry seemingly less concerned about profit margins than many other businesses. And if the chemical and oil industries are a criterion, the coming slow - down in capital spending will not be drastic.

He was surprised to find a number of building companies expecting to do relatively well in the second half, which, he says, points up a possible area of stabilization in 1958.

Coal Miners Told To Shut Operations

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Sanitary Water Board has ordered these western Pennsylvania coal mines to shut down until they have received drainage permits:

River Hill Coal Co, Snow Shoe Twp., Centre County; Oran Peate, Sugarcreek Twp and James Duncan, Madison Twp. both Armstrong County and Louis Conner, Redbank Twp., Clarion County, all deep mines, and Casper Kassab, a strip mine in Woodward Twp, Clearfield County.

Newlywed Couple Is Honored by FHA Officials

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Federal Housing Administration today honored a newlywed couple in their own living room for receiving the 50 millionth FHA loan.

FHA officials planned to confer a certificate on Mr. and Mrs. Edwin B. Lawless of nearby Vienna, Va.

"I feel like I've been on a quiz show," Mrs. Lawless said. "It's really quite interesting."

The Lawless house is a three-bedroom so-called "rambler" in a new housing development called East Vienna Woods. Mrs. Lawless said she and her civil engineer husband moved in Aug. 10—the day after they were married.

She said she hadn't decided what she would do with the FHA's certificate.

"I guess we'll have it framed and hang it in the study," she said.
